May 01, 2020 -
South Carolina's award-winning landscaping business, Taylor's Quality Landscape Supply, has partnered with the expert garden consultant, Nicole Burke.

Through its virtual event, the Best Garden Building Supplier in Bluffton, SC features Burke, who shared her expertise in kitchen gardens. It is a type of garden that's developed to be tended regularly to produce food. Gerrick Taylor, the owner of the company, says doing some landscaping projects and building a garden is timely as everyone is required to stay at home due to the Covid-19 pandemic.

Burke is the owner of Rooted Garden and Garden. She's also the author of the soon-to-be-released book, Kitchen Garden Revival. Through the social media accounts of Taylor's QSL, Burke started sharing ideas about kitchen gardens, and how to start a new project at home.

In a post by Burke, she shared that aside from good food, having a kitchen garden also allows homeowners to connect with nature and improve their well-being. "Kitchen gardens are also good for our communities. They connect us with local farmers, soil providers and help support the local economy and ecology. Kitchen gardens are also good for the whole world. They help reverse climate change, lower our carbon footprint and feed our suffering pollinators like bees and butterflies," she adds.

This virtual garden event is part of the company's commitment to serving SC communities amid the global pandemic. The Best Landscape Supplier in Bluffton, SC will also feature more activities from Burke in the coming weeks.

For her part, Burker also commits to providing SC residents with the best ways to build kitchen gardens at home. "While we may never return to being an agricultural society, we can all have a little taste of farm to table in our own spaces by setting up a raised bed kitchen garden," Burke adds.

Meanwhile, as the state remains on lockdown, the landscaping company continues to practice required safety protocols. The local business has installed walk-in counters on all its store locations to prevent any physical contact with their customers. For those who are not comfortable leaving their home, Taylor's QLS also offers a virtual tour of their nursery. They also ensure that all their equipment was disinfected during and after service.

The company now has four locations. Their main office and nursery are located at 36 Cecil Reynolds Road, Bluffton, SC 29910. They also have stores in Hilton Head and Beaufort, SC as well as Pooler, Georgia.

The Best Garden Decor Supplier in Bluffton, SC offers a varied list of landscape materials and garden supplies.
