Chicago, IL based EDMAR Corporation Masonry is pleased to inform the communities they serve that their team is ready and willing to conduct free masonry building evaluations for all interested parties. Given that spring is underway, it is currently the best time of the year for such evaluations to be held, especially if building owners want to get ahead of the coming winter season. The company invites their community to get in touch and schedule their next evaluation at their earliest convenience.

The firm states, ?Chicago winters tend to cause a lot of damage to masonry brick, CMU block and stone buildings. However, the following spring season is always the best time to evaluate masonry structures and perform necessary repairs before the cold season begins again. Fortunately, EDMAR Corporation Masonry always provides free masonry building evaluations and quotes for building owners in the area.? This free estimate may be obtained in at least one of two ways: by contacting the company?s customer service line or by filling in the contact form that can be found on their website (on the ?Free Estimate? page).

Building owners are advised to have an inspection carried out after a winter as a matter of course, but there are certain signs of damage or wear and tear they can keep an eye out for that will signify that the attention of an experienced contractor is required. For instance, a building?s owners or tenants may discover deteriorating bricks, missing mortar between bricks, corroding lintels, crumbling parapet walls or even chimneys that no longer stand fully upright. While damage of this nature is often considered a minor problem at this stage, the issue is that they also tend to represent a source of vulnerability that can expose the structure to the elements even further. In time, a relatively minor problem that previously only lowered the building?s overall aesthetic appeal may develop into a more critical fault that is correspondingly more expensive to correct.

In such situations, the EDMAR Corporation Masonry location in Chicago can be contacted or visited in order to schedule an evaluation. Since the company specializes in restoring such structures to their former glory, customers may utilize their services to have the faults in their building?s exterior fixed to their satisfaction. Their experience in the industry also means that they can optimize the process in order to finish a job as promptly as possible, with minimal disruption to the building?s tenants. EDMAR Corporation Masonry is considered one of the best tuckpointing and masonry contractors in Chicago, so their customers tend to find their services to be quite invaluable.

For instance, Michael Pys says in their 5-Star Google review, ?Thank you for the great service. We had some tuckpointing work that needed to be done on the chimney and foundation of our home. They responded quickly to my call, fit us into their schedule and completed the work very quickly. Nice crew of workers. Clean work. Great job.?

Similarly, Tony Ruiz says in another highly-rated review that EDMAR Corporation Masonry is, ?By far the most professional and highly skilled company I've worked with. I had a chimney taken down and rebuilt from the roof line up. The most difficult part of the job was the pitch of the roof and how close my neighbors' homes are next to mine. The crew skillfully put up scaffolding, took down the damaged chimney and built a new chimney in the same day. My neighbors didn't even know they were there. Crews cleaned up afterwards, and it also a pleasure working with Ed the owner in the contractual process. Top notch company! I will definitely use them again.?
