May 01, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Ridgefield Park, New Jersey based Diamond Rock Spring Water is reaching out to inform local communities that they are experiencing high demand over the course of the COVID-19 global health crisis. Due to the high water requirements in this period, the company states that they are working hard to provide a supply of clean water to local residents and businesses in the greater New Jersey area.

As noted on the company's website, Diamond Rock Spring Water is currently offering 8 ounce, 16.9 ounce, 1.5 liter and single gallon cases of spring water to their customers, along with distilled water that can be served in either a single-gallon or 5-gallon variant. To help New Jersey residents and businesses during the COVID-19 pandemic, the company is allowing non-contractual services, and they currently require no certain minimum order from their customers. During these trying times, Diamond Rock Spring Water explains that they recognize the importance of drinking clean water as well as making clean water available for everyone, not just to those who can afford it.

Richard Picinich from Diamond Rock Spring Water says, "Diamond Rock Spring Water has always been dedicated to providing our customers with an affordable and accessible supply of clean water. We make sure that each customer is attended to as quickly as possible because we understand how important it is to have a reliable supply of clean water, especially during this period of uncertainty. We take pride in having a team of experienced technicians and well-trained staff who provide our customers with nothing but great service. We have also expanded our horizons by offering a wide range of quality products along with our water supply services."

He states that Diamond Rock Spring Water now offers mini coolers, hot and cold coolers as well as K-Cups and brewers from their partner company, Keurig. Picinich adds that they currently have 140 varieties of K-cup brands for customers to choose from, asserting that their prices are very competitive (especially in fairly large sums).

"We take pride in being transparent about the source of our water supply, so we can reassure our customers that they are getting nothing but clean water. Our natural spring water comes from the pristine land of the Kittatinny Mountains where we have full control of land protection and preservation. We have had our water tested by the government and, most importantly, we are approved by the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA). We are also licensed by the New Jersey State Department of Health, so we really handle our water well," says Picinich.

He also points out that Diamond Rock Spring Water delivers water directly to the front doors of their customers, which is what they have also been trying to do even in the middle of the COVID-19 pandemic. Diamond Rock Spring Water currently serves customers from Ridgefield Park (which is where they are based) and other counties in New Jersey, such as Bergen, Hudson, Union and Essex. Customers can locate their services through Google Maps.

Diamond Rock Spring Water asserts that they are always looking for new ways to satisfy the needs of their customers. The water company states that they are pleased they are able to give back to the community and offer aid to children through the donations of their local teams and fundraising partners. "Our family believes not only in quality service but also in giving back. Whenever we are given the chance to donate, may it be through scholarships for graduating seniors or by helping underprivileged children get the open heart surgery they need through The Gift Of Life Fund, we take it. Most of the aid we like to give is directed to children, so we also made sure we donate to Go The Distance for Autism, which is a foundation that holds marathons for a good cause," Picinich states.
