Carabin Shaw, based in San Antonio, and whose website can be found online at <https://www.carabinshaw.com>, is pleased to announce that the company has acquired and distributed more than one thousand face masks to people in the local community who were in need of one. This free of charge offer has proven so popular that Carabin Shaw has temporarily run out but the company has ordered more masks and they expect that they will soon be available at the company's main office.

Founded more than 25 years ago, Carabin Shaw's stated mission was to help people within the local community with any or all legal issues that arose. Today the company continues to reaffirm its commitment and promise to its clients across the state of Texas. Although the coronavirus pandemic has caused many different issues for different people the company remains open and available to help new and existing clients.

Carabin Shaw is a law firm consisting of experienced attorneys who represent clients that have suffered catastrophic personal injuries and wrongful deaths. Although specializing in car accident and personal injury claims the company obviously offers both civil law and criminal law expertise. Carabin Shaw does not represent insurance companies or HMOs but aims to help real people with real problems.

As part of its commitment to the local community, Carabin Shaw who can also be found at <https://no1-lawyer.com> took the decision to acquire and distribute protective face masks for those who could not obtain them for themselves.

Currently, within the United States, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention more commonly known as the CDC has recently recommended that everyone should wear a cloth mask. The rationale behind this recommendation is that someone who is infected is much less likely to pass that infection on. Many people thought that wearing such a mask was to stop them getting the disease but in fact that is not the case. It is not to prevent the wearer getting infected but to stop them infecting someone else.

It was not however, a mandatory measure and this meant that many chose not to wear a mask because they felt they had no symptoms. The problem with this way of thinking was that those who chose not to wear a mask because they had no symptoms was that that assumption was flawed. This is because it has been shown time and again that many who tested positive for COVID-19 were asymptomatic. In other words, they had no symptoms whatsoever, and if they had gone out without a mask in place then there was a very real risk that they would unknowingly infect others. It is obviously important that a mask is worn when venturing out because if one is not aware that they have COVID-19, they could infect someone who is not in a good position to fight the disease because their system may be compromised. COVID-19 is not a forgiving disease.

Obtaining a mask, however, is not as simple as it once was, and it is exceedingly difficult for individuals to get hold of. This is where companies like Carabin Shaw have really stepped up to the plate by endeavoring to obtain masks on the community's behalf and to distribute them to those who needed them at no charge.

Julie Anscome, a local resident, said, "When the CDC said that we should all be wearing masks, I went online to see if I could get one, and to be quite honest, I couldn't. Places I would usually go to were only offering masks to health workers and I had to look elsewhere. I did find them on offer at several places, but they were either much too expensive and I couldn't afford them, or it was going to be several weeks before they would even ship. When I learned that Carabin Shaw were giving them out I was really relieved to finally get hold of one."
