Nourish Beaute, a health and beauty company in Aspen, CO, which has been selling a shampoo designed to stimulate hair growth, has announced that it is now offering a free eBook with every purchase. The company has recently announced the addition of a conditioner to this product line. And now, with the eBook, the company will be providing hints, tips and scientific advice on hair regrowth treatment.

Cynthia Ferrara from Nourish Beaute says: "Our shampoo has long been very popular and our conditioner is doing really well too. However, customers were asking us if we had any information on how the shampoos work, why hair loss happens and more. We decided to compile an eBook with this type of information and will provide this to customers with every purchase."

The eBook explains how the NOURISH Vitamins shampoo is designed to target five specific elements that support hair growth. The first element is the presence of an ingredient that has been reported to block dihydrotestosterone (DHT), which is a hormone that is released in greater quantities as a person reaches middle age and causes hair loss. Another factor is the observation that blood circulation to the hair roots is improved. The result is that the roots become healthier, thus allowing hair to become stronger and grow faster.

Also, the product has been shown to stimulate the anagen growth phase. It is during this phase that hair grows around 1 cm every 28 days. This phase lasts between two and seven years. After that, the hair goes into the catagen phase, at which point it starts to fall out. "What our product does is make sure hairs follicles are stimulated to be in the anagen phase and to make the most out of that phase as well," adds Cynthia Ferrara. "By stimulating this phase, hair grows much more quickly as well."

Furthermore, the VITAMINS Shampoo has been found to help strengthen root anchoring, thereby reducing the amount of hair loss. Finally, the eBook discusses how the product has been observed to clear wax buildup on hair. Those who want to get more details can visit the company website.
