Reading, PA - The personal injury lawyers in Reading who are integral members of the Tus Abogados Locales network have finally made public the date and time of their next event. Given the current circumstances, it will be held as a virtual session (webinar) on Monday, May 11th at 8:30PM.

"We've been pleasantly surprised with how well our clients are responding to the online format of our latest informational sessions," shared Laurence Banville, Esq., an attorney at the firm, "it just so happens that the current climate also makes it the most convenient."

Banville continued, "No matter the medium, our goal with these events is always the same: to bring value to our audience. Our experience serving as personal injury attorneys in Reading allows us to win cases for our clients, but it also allows us to answer their questions and ease the doubts of our community."

Injury law can encompass many different types of legal cases including slip and falls, auto accidents, and even workers' compensation claims. Disability benefits also fall under this category, as do medical negligence cases. Universal among all these different varieties is the fact that victims can seek and ultimately attain a compensation whose amount is ultimately decided by a judge or jury.
