The Net Lender (TNL), headquartered in California, is reaching out to all those in Florida affected by the COVID-19 pandemic. The company is able to offer the same assistance to anyone online, which helps ensure that all involved parties, including their own staff, can limit their exposure. Full details of their quick three-step process is available on their website here: https://thenetlender.com/.

Recently, the Florida Department of Financial Services (DFS) and the Office of Insurance Regulation (OIR) took measures to help those who need treatment. Although some insurers are voluntarily waiving cost-sharing for their customers in order to remove barriers for COVID-19 testing, the cost of treatment has hit those already strained by tight financial resources.

Many Floridians who were already concerned that they would not qualify for financial assistance are relieved when they find out that, with TNL, they do not need a job in order to qualify. They only need to have a monthly income of at least $1,500, which can come from any source (such as social security, pension or disability payments). This means they will not need to raid their savings and investments to ensure that they can undertake testing and receive treatment if necessary.

Those self-isolating are also benefiting from Governor DeSantis? Executive Order, which authorizes pharmacists to dispense up to a 30-day emergency prescription of maintenance medication to persons who reside in Florida. This helps reduce the number of trips they need to make outside their home. However, many have since found that they cannot meet their own expenses or the up front costs of getting their extra supplies. This is where the TNL can help those who qualify, providing quick financial assistance so that their customers can ensure they have the supplies they need.

TNL is able to offer financial assistance within 24 hours to all those who provide the necessary documents and paperwork. Generally, however, applicants who have a vehicle title in their own name are likely to discover that TNL employs a rapid approval process. Same-day financial assistance approval can take less than 15 minutes through the company?s streamlined online process. Their high quality service is backed up by online client reviews, which have given them the highest possible rating on Google: 5 Stars. They also have a 100% Excellent rating on Trustpilot. On Trustpilot, Mar Vasq shares, ?I never got a cash advance on a title before, so I was a little nervous. The Net Lender specialist was very nice, helpful and pleasant. I was in and out within half an hour, so the lending process was quick and easy. Overall, it has helped me a great deal. I plan to pay it off quickly.?

A recent Google review by Laverne Phillips highlights how easy TNL?s online financial assistance is. In her 5-Star review, Phillips says, ?Very simple online application process, and the rest is done over the phone. I just snapped a few pictures of my car and got approved for my auto title financial aid the same day.? TNL is not concerned with bad credit ratings and they do not care how the money is used.

The company made the news earlier this month for the guidance they provided on how gasoline prices have been behaving during the COVID-19 crisis. TNL highlighted that it usually takes around six weeks before the change in oil prices is reflected in the cost per gallon of gasoline and diesel prices at gas stations across the US.

To assist those who have taken up their advice to shop around, TNL has provided a webpage on their website that shows gas stations close to zip code 90041. Given that there is a wide variation in the gasoline prices from station to station, it makes sense for everyone else in the country to do the same. Full details of their advice can be read on their media page at https://www.pressadvantage.com/organization/the-net-lender.

Anyone interested in finding out if they qualify for TNL?s financial assistance can either call them directly or complete the easy online application to receive their own quick notice of approval. Those who want to learn more can explore The Net Lender?s official website as well.
