May 26, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

New York, NY based Reviewimo is reaching out to their dedicated readers and all parties who are searching for new wifi routers to share that there is indeed a difference in a quality between the various products available on the market in this category. Reviewimo, as the name suggests, specializes in exploring and explaining the virtues and drawbacks of many items. They consider it their mission to show consumers around the country how valuable the right purchase can be. Learn more here: Reviewimo Wifi Routers.

The company notes that it may be tempting for internet users to purchase the cheapest router they can find due to the belief that anything is fine as long as it offers access to the internet. However, they caution their readers against using this belief as a gauge for the right Wifi router for their household. Mike Chrest of Reviewimo states, ?Recent polls show that many Americans all over the country will remain home in order to maintain safe social distancing protocols even though states are attempting to reopen to one degree or another. Given that this effectively means the internet will be the sole means of exploration for millions of people, we expect a surge in interest regarding any and all products relating to internet access. Wifi routers are one such product.?

He continues, ?It is vital that customers consider what sort of amenities their household requires, however, since not all Wifi routers are created equal. Similarly, they must not allow marketing buzzwords to lead them to think that the most expensive router is necessarily the best one for their home. Each and every product in this category has its strengths and weaknesses. We advise that you check out our Wifi router reviews in order to ensure you know exactly what features you require?and which products will deliver most efficiently.?

The COVID-19 pandemic is expected to last for a few more months at the very least, but it remains to be seen whether lockdowns will need to be re-instigated or if Americans will stay home that long if given the choice. Regardless, the company observes that the sharp rise in unemployment will undoubtedly mean that every purchase will now have to be considered carefully as everyone makes do with much stricter budgets.

Reviewimo?s post on the subject takes this into account, looking at three routers that represent everything from affordable and/or convenient to expensive and/or complicated. Specifically, the company offers their readers insight on the Netgear R9000 Nighthawk X10, Tp-Link Archer AC3150 V2 Gigabit and the Asus Rog Rapture Wireless-AC5300 Gaming.

Of the three, the Tp-Link Archer AC3150 V2 Gigabit is considered the most budget-friendly, boasting a variety of features that comprise everything the average user would need. It also has excellent performance and can connect to multiple devices at the same time without the internet connection faltering. On the other side of the spectrum is the Netgear R9000 Nighthawk X10, which delivers ultrafast wireless speed up to 7.2Gbps and features seven Gigabit Ethernet ports. However, its feature set is complemented by a price to match, so buyers will have to consider whether they really need the extra power and versatility. Last on the list, but by no means the least, is the Asus Rog Rapture Wireless-AC5300 Gaming. As the name suggests, this particular Wifi router is designed explicitly for gamers who are looking for best-in-class gaming performance. As a difference of a few milliseconds can mean the difference between a fun game and a frustrating online experience, this router?s ability to prioritise gaming traffic may be exactly what gamers are looking for. However, it is large and rather bulky, and the features it boasts may not be worth it for customers who are budget-conscious at this time.

A full list of the advantages and disadvantages of each router can be viewed on Reviewimo?s website, along with a breakdown of their usability.
