They want to point out that over 30,000 people are killed in motor vehicle accidents across the US every year. Meanwhile, hundreds of thousands of people are affected by such accidents, and are forced to deal with the negative impact of such incidents. Such accidents can, and often, result into permanent disabilities for victims that tend to restrict their ability to work and do a number of activities.

Bob Germany, the firm's founder, points out that there are a wide range of reasons why auto accidents happen. It has been observed, unfortunately, that most motor vehicle collisions happen because of the negligent and reckless acts of other drivers on the road. Serious injuries are often experienced by car accident victims because of human error. Statistics has shown that distracted driving is the primary reason for motor vehicle accidents throughout the whole United States.

Bob Germany explains, "Our experienced and aggressive Southaven car accident attorneys at Germany Law Firm, PLLC have helped numerous victims protect their legal rights and get the compensation they deserve. Our team works diligently to prioritize the needs of victims and ensure they get the maximum amount of compensation they are entitled to. Furthermore, we are dedicated to helping those harmed hold all liable parties accountable for their actions. There are a number of common causes of auto accidents in Mississippi. These include speeding drivers, impaired drivers, tailgating, drivers who don't follow stop signs and traffic control devices, nighttime driving, inclement weather, wrong-way drivers, illegal turns, mechanical defects or malfunctions, reckless driving, road hazards and potholes, construction on roadways, and tire blowouts.

Meanwhile, there is a broad range of possible injuries that auto accident victims may suffer from in Mississippi. These could be serious injuries and may even be fatal. It should be noted that the intensity of the injury will depend substantially on the types of motor vehicles involved in the accident, the speeds at which the vehicles were traveling before the collision, and several other factors. Some of the most common types of injuries encountered by the car accident attorneys in the firm include herniated discs, post-traumatic stress disorder, broken bones, broken ribs, chest injuries, neck injuries torn ligaments, head injuries, collapsed lungs, spinal cord injuries, traumatic brain injuries, internal organ injuries, and lacerations and abrasions.

They would like to advise motor vehicle accident victims to consult with a reputable attorney right after they have been provided with medical help. It is vital to gather evidence from the scene of the accident. Photos of the road conditions, lighting, traffic control devices, and other essential information must be taken because such evidence can help determine who is at fault. Getting a copy of the police report is also essential. It is also important for victims to seek medical attention, even if they don't feel any symptoms. Medical professionals will be able to help with the documentation of the kind of injury suffered and the medical treatment that was provided.

Another important piece of advice for victims is to avoid taking responsibility for the accident. This can jeopardize the victim's chances of getting full and fair compensation for the injuries and property damage. Representatives of insurance companies will do their best to convince victims to accept lowball settlements that will benefit the insurance provider. Rather than talking to the insurance representative, victims would be better off talking to a reliable lawyer. They will discuss the various legal alternatives to allow victims to get compensated for their medical expenses, property damages, and other damages.
