May 29, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Weddings with Motion, a Tinley Park, Illinois based wedding videography service, would like to announce the addition of Zoom video consultations to their long list of services and options. The new option to use Zoom for consultations will ensure that Weddings with Motion can provide better service to their clients in and around the Illinois area even if it is currently very difficult to move around or meet people. Given the COVID-19 crisis, the addition will likely help the company continue to provide service to their clients while still observing all social distancing directives.

In effort to give you the full experience of meeting face to face while still working to limit in person encounters due to COVID-19, we are now offering Zoom and FaceTime video consultations for all couples. We are here to make this transition that much easier for you! Schedule your Zoom or Facetime call on our site, the wedding photography service says.

Weddings with Motion is a team of creatives who are always looking to push the boundaries of what wedding photography and videography can be. The studio makes it their job to capture their clients' weddings in the most unique and compelling way possible. Weddings With Motion's goal is to not only capture stunning images, but to capture the intimate, personal details of each clients' wedding day and to tell their unique story through video so that they can remember and relive those special moments forever.

One aspect that separates Weddings with Motion from similar services is the fact that they make an effort to get to know their clients. The first step with Weddings with Motion is always a meeting—face to face during normal times and over Zoom during the current crisis. The photography service believes that it is essential to build some sort of relationship with their clients. Meeting with the client is the best way to determine whether or not their needs and wants are compatible with the kind of services offered by the studio.

“Each wedding is unique and personal in their own ways,” says Weddings with Motion. “Every couple has a unique vision for how their special day will go, and they often have very specific wants when it comes to how the day is captured. What all couples have in common, however, is that their wedding days always feature beautiful, precious moments. We believe in capturing these moments down to the finest details. We offer three main video packages that are designed to give you a quality over quantity product. If you're looking to add on more, we offer a full range of extra services, including aerial drone video footage.”

Usually, Weddings with Motion will break down the day into four sections: the bridal and groom preparation, the ceremony, the creative session and the reception. Weddings with Motion’s team often spends the day with the couple from the early stages of preparation to the reception, capturing every important moment during the day.

Many of the wedding photography service’s clients have left excellent reviews of their experience. “Rick is an amazing videographer and even better person. He made my bridal party so comfortable and was a joy to be around,” says a review from Olivia and Fred. “He also has an amazing way of hanging back in the shadows but capturing all the best moments. Book him now and don’t look back, he will make your special day look like a movie.”

Another couple, Diana and Aaron, shares that, “If you are looking for a videographer, look no further, and just hope that Rick and his crew are available, because you won’t find better. Thank you to Rick and everyone else for making our wedding day perfect and for giving us a treasured memory for the rest of our lives. We can’t thank you enough for how perfectly you captured our love on that day.”
