August 24, 2015

August 24, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

MIAMI ? Miami Beach Vein Institute, one of Florida?s top medical practices dedicated to treating varicose and spider veins, announced today that it is expanding to offer its services across Miami. This makes the practice accessible to people throughout the Miami area.

?We have had people coming across the water from Miami for many years,? said Dr. Albert Malvehy, founder and principle physician at the Institute. ?We are hoping to touch more patients who need our treatments by expanding our reach outside of Miami Beach.?

The Institute treats men and women who suffer from vein conditions such as spider veins on the outside or back of their thighs. Dr. Malvehy uses specialized vein viewing technology to identify blood vessels feeding problem spider veins and treat those as part of a comprehensive treatment regimen in order to deliver durable results. The practice also performs spider vein injection and sclerotherapy. The Institute?s website, www.miamibeachvein.com, describes procedures in depth.

Dr. Malvehy provides expert diagnosis and treatment, taking a multidisciplinary approach to varicose vein treatment and spider vein treatment. He uses a combination of vein treatment techniques to customize therapy on a patient-by-patient basis. He has deep roots in the city of Miami. He was raised in Miami Beach, Bay Harbor and Sunny Isles/Aventura before graduating from the University of Miami and the University of Miami School of Medicine, where he was a Medical Scholar.

Dr. Malvey is certified by the American Board of Venous and Lymphatic Medicine (ABVLM). Only 675 physicians in the US are certified by the Board. Certification by the Board denotes extensive experience and expertise in treating venous disease. He is the only Registered Phlebology Sonographer (RPhS) in Miami Beach - one of only 17 in Florida. RPhS is a certification awarded to professionals with extensive vein disease diagnostic expertise.
