

Leading Safe Personal Alarm Wins Over New Customer

Israel based SLFORCE Ltd is delighted to share a recent Amazon review from a customer who purchased the SLFORCE Safe Personal Alarm. Publicly available on the product's Amazon page, the glowing 5-Star review explains what made the customer settle on SLFORCE's alarm as well as how they shared it with their loved ones. The review in question, written by a customer who identifies themselves as Sandra, says, "Emily, thank you for the great protection alarms. After checking several, I chose yours as they seem to be the easiest to use. I, just yesterday, gave two away: for my daughter and a granddaughter. The other granddaughter will get hers as soon as we are out of hibernation/stay away due to the coronavirus. I have already placed mine on my purse with the additional handy clip. Will test it later as it's just puppy and me. Don't want to startle her. Haven't decided who gets the fifth one." The review concludes, "Thank you for offering them at a reasonable price and in assorted colors. I would certainly recommend them to others."

As Sandra hints at in her review, each purchase of the SLFORCE Safe Personal Alarm comes with a selection of five such devices (in multiple colour options) that can then be distributed as the customer sees fit. Sandra believed that giving her remaining personal alarms to her daughter and granddaughter would do the most good, but they are designed in such a way so as to suit virtually any user. The colour options also mean that each customer may simply use the alarm they like the most and keep the others safely tucked away as backups. However, SLFORCE believes these devices would do the most good if they were handed to people who needed them. This is one reason the company has chosen to price their innovative little alarms so attractively?they consider it their mission to improve the safety of as many people as possible.

?Throughout history, there have been those that wished to do people personal harm for one reason or another,? states the company, ?and this is rarely as true as it is in an urban environment. If you live in a big city, you are likely to find yourself wondering how well you would fare against an attacker. However, the crucial detail to remember is that cities are, by definition, big areas in which many people reside. This means that help can often be no more than a shout away.?

The issue, however, is that the practical benefit of calling for help is often eclipsed by the fact that certain attackers, such as muggers, can snatch a purse and escape before help arrives. In worst case scenarios, the attacker may even be able to silence their victim before they can call out long enough for someone to realise they are in trouble.

As the company and many of their customers have discovered, however, the answer may lie in the SLFORCE Safe Personal Alarm. This is due to the fact that it emits an incredible 130-decibel siren that is virtually impossible to ignore. ?Attackers universally despise drawing attention to themselves,? the company notes. ?Even if it is unlikely that anyone is nearby, the sheer sound our alarm puts out will probably be enough to make them reconsider the risk of staying in the area. The sound is comparable to the noise a military jet makes upon takeoff.?

Notably, the alarm is not activated by the press of a button or the flick of a switch. Instead, SLFORCE implemented a pin design that enables the user to quickly pull out a tab in order to activate the alarm. Replacing the pin is the only way to shut the alarm off as well, so an individual who has to make use of it need not be concerned that they will accidentally shut it off and make themselves vulnerable once more.

More information can be found on SLFORCE?s website as well as their Amazon product page. Further inquiries may be directed to SLFORCE?s customer service team as well. Similarly, the company welcomes all input from their customers.
