Las Vegas, NV home decor company WallDecalsAndArt is proud to announce the release of two new products. The first is their dry erase sticker board and the second is the personal chalkboard sheets. The company has released these products just in time for the 'Back to School' period of the year and intends to provide families with an opportunity to be more organized in a fun way.

Ryan Richard from WallDecalsAndArt says: "Now that it is almost time to go back to school, families are preparing themselves for school days, after school activities and play dates. Our new products have been designed to help them be more organized, while having fun at the same time."

The WallDecalsAndArt boards and sheets are designed to help children have fun with their homework and artwork. They are also particularly popular with home schooling parents, who find them very useful as a makeshift blackboard in their home. Kids love writing on the boards and they can be used again and again.

Since their release, both products have already received positive reviews. "Great chalk board vinyl roll that is perfect for your budding school age children," says Chanel Chamberlin. "I love how easy this is to apply to my wall and instead of screaming at my kids for not drawing on the walls and now they have something they can draw on. This product is perfect for those who are home schooling as well. It comes with a chalk marker for your use and it is easy to wash/erase for more uses. This chalk board roll is large as well so that more than one child can draw on it at a time. I have all three of my children draw on it at the same time to reduce fighting and yelling in the house."

One thing that many customers are noticing, particularly about the chalkboard vinyl roll, is that it can have various functions. While incredibly popular with homeschooling parents, it is also great as a decoration item in children's rooms. In fact, there are even some people who use them in their shops.
