June 22, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Furnace Repair Vaughan has just announced that they have opened a new location in the Vaughan, Ontario area. This is part of the company's ongoing effort to always serve their customers' needs in the best possible way. The new location will help their service techs respond even quicker to the regular and emergency furnace repair needs of those in Vaughan and elsewhere in the Greater Toronto area. 150 Connie Crescent, Unit 14, Vaughan, Ontario, L4K 1L9 is the street address of this new location.

Jack Munroe, the company owner, had this to say, "We are a furnace repair services provider that has always claimed to take a customer-first approach. There is no better example of that than opening a new location that will help us meet our customers' furnace repair needs in a faster and more efficient manner. Our new 150 Connie Crescent, Unit 14 location is centrally located in what can best be described as a hotbed of longstanding furnace repair customers for us. We are very pleased to be able to take our highly rated furnace repair services and kick them up yet another notch. It's our way of reaffirming that we will do whatever it takes to service our customers in Vaughan and the surrounding areas in the best possible way."

Monroe went on to say that getting to their service calls quicker is not the only benefit that their customers will receive from the opening of the new location. He says that the new building also has more room which will help the support staff handle calls and schedule the service techs more efficiently. Storage space is also more ample at the new facility which will help them more easily keep their service vehicles fully stocked with furnace repair replacement parts. The owner says that this will in turn help their HVAC Vaughan techs resolve even more of their furnace repair service calls in a single trip to a customer's home. It will also give them faster access to those replacement parts which are not carried on the company's service vehicles. There is even a conference type setting in the new building where customers can sit down and go over with the staff the details of a new furnace installation. He went on to describe the new location as a definite "win-win" scenario for both their customers and company personnel.

The company owner also stressed that nothing else about the company will change with the opening of the new location. He says that they will remain a company that adheres to a quality audit program designed to guarantee 100% customer satisfaction. Also, Monroe states that they will continue to only hire the top HVAC professionals and customer service staff in the industry. The owner also emphasized that the status quo is never good enough for their furnace repair company and each employee will continue to receive ongoing training to strengthen their service performance.

The effort that Furnace Repair Vaughan puts forth to satisfy their customers is reflected in many ways. One of them is their excellent standing with the local Better Business Bureau. According to that bureau, the company does their job well enough that they have earned this business oversight group's highest rating of A+. The company owner added that the fact that they have rapidly grown since the company's inception in 2011 also points favorably to them being a company that consistently satisfies their customers' HVAC service and repair needs.

Monroe says that their customers will also continue to benefit from them being a family-owned and operated company. That enables them to make changes faster so they can better serve the needs of their Toronto area customers. He says that they will also continue to offer quality furnace repair services which include their rapid-response 24-7 emergency services which the company is well-known for. For those that would like more information on the company's heating and cooling Vaughan services, Monroe welcomes them to contact the company by phone, email, or by filling out the quick response form on the "contact us" page of the company website.
