Decatur Car Accident Chiropractor: How To Identify Whiplash

June 22, 2020

DECATUR, GA - June 22, 2020 -
Decatur, Georgia based Arrowhead Clinic is reaching out to the community to raise awareness of whiplash, its dangers, and how they may recognize its early symptoms following a collision on the road. The clinic hopes this information will lead more accident victims to seek help after they meet with an accident.

While many car accident injuries can be noticed right away, the combination of adrenaline and stress that follows these incidents can mask some other types of injuries. Whiplash is an injury most commonly caused by car accidents, for instance, and it can take anywhere from a few hours up to a couple of days for a car accident victim to show any serious symptoms, making it difficult for them to determine the extent of their injuries. According to Arrowhead Clinic, ruling out whiplash is a relatively simple task as there are some telltale signs that all accident victims can look out for.

"Even if you appear to be unharmed after a car accident, you should always seek medical attention after an incident of this kind to prevent the deterioration of your health," says Dr. Roy Vogel of the Arrowhead Clinic. He continues, "However, if you cannot do this for some reason, you can always try to discard some of the most common injuries that are caused by car accidents. Once you pinpoint the source of your discomfort, you can visit a car accident chiropractor near Decatur to receive a professional diagnosis and treatment."

A whiplash injury occurs when there is a forceful or rapid back and forth motion of the neck. This forces the ligaments and muscles in the neck beyond their normal range of motion, causing injury due to overexertion. Whiplash injuries can range from mild to severe, and while the lesser injuries present minor health risks, seeking medical attention helps prevent the deterioration of the condition over time.

The most common symptoms of whiplash are neck pain and stiffness. This stiffness and limited range of motion are meant to protect the neck from further injury, and it can also be present in the victim's shoulder blades or the area between the shoulder blades. These symptoms are often accompanied by headaches, dizziness, sleep disturbances, memory problems, and fatigue.

While having a few of these symptoms is not a definite diagnosis, these signs are known to show up most often in whiplash victims, and they are a clear indication that the person in question should seek immediate medical treatment. When it comes to whiplash, the longer the patient waits to seek treatment, the worse their injury can become, increasing the risk of them not achieving a full recovery from the injury.

Dr. Vogel says, "When it comes to treating whiplash injuries, chiropractors are typically your best choice. While other physicians may prescribe you pain medication to lessen your discomfort, we address the source of the issue. We treat the muscles in your neck and shoulder area in order to support a full recovery, healing your body to help you regain full range of motion rather than masking your affliction."
