A Plumber in Seattle, WA Helps Supports Front Line Workers

June 23, 2020

June 23, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Seattle, Wash. ? Raymark Plumbing and Sewer is a local plumber in Seattle that helps support workers on the Covid-19 front lines by volunteering for the Fine Dine Front Lines Organization. This non-profit program provides high-quality food from local restaurants to front line hospital and health care workers, free of charge.

Closures due to Covid-19 have put a strain on restaurants, and front line workers are working around the clock with little rest time. These problems created an opening for the Fine Dine Front Lines Organization to support the workers, and to rally and strengthen the community by presenting an opportunity to help others.

Restaurants are essential in providing large quantities of prepared food. Fine Dine Front Lines purchases meals, the meals are cooked and boxed by the restaurant, and the organization then picks up and delivers the meals to the area?s hospitals and health care center employees for free. The organization orders a minimum of 100 meals at a time with the goal of serving 1,000 lunches per week.

Fine Dine Front Lines is funded by supporters of front line workers and local restaurants via social media and crowdfunding donations. help support local restaurants and front line health care workers, visit their website at finedinefrontlines.com or on their GoFundMe page, finedinefrontlines.
