When the Lake Las Vegas Sports Club called upon A1 Fence LV with a tricky custom gate project, this commercial fence company stepped up in a big way. They used their many years of wrought iron gate fabrication skills to come up with a gate design that was sturdy, practical, and highly decorative. The sports club asked this reputable Las Vegas area gate and fence company to help with this project because they wanted the area where the new gate was going to look better and be more functional for an upcoming wedding. Not only did A1 Fence LV complete this project in a manner that the sports club ownership was very happy with, but they also finished the job on a somewhat tight schedule.

Eli Maciel, the owner of A1 Fence LV, says, "We take a lot of pride being a Las Vegas area fence company that can work outside of the box if we have to. That's a necessity in our business because there are times when factory purchased products simply will not fit or be practical in a certain gate or fence building scenario. Our customers then count on us to use our creativity and experience in the fencing business to come up with a custom gate or fence solution for them. There is no better example of that than the recent wrought iron gate fabrication project we completed. We took what was an immovable traditional section of fencing and replaced it with a custom wrought iron gate that made for a beautiful entranceway into an area of the Las Vegas Sports Club where a wedding was soon to take place. I could not be prouder of my crew for the way this gate project turned out and how satisfied the sports club management was with the work that was done."

Maciel said that what made the product tricky was that they were replacing a section of wrought iron fence between two support pillars that was used for nothing more than a barrier. They were now tasked with turning that into a swinging double gate that looked good and still had enough room to open on both sides. To make matters worse, there were also shrubs and other plants that were growing on the outside of the existing fence whose roots were deeply embedded into the ground after years of growth. He says that this greenery had to be painstakingly removed before the project could commence and then matching brick pavers laid down in their place. The company owner admitted that while it was a challenging fence and gate project, the way his crew thoughtfully approached the entire job helped it go along very smoothly.

A1 Fence LV is a 34-year old family-run Las Vegas commercial fence company that provides a wide variety of enclosure solutions to many private businesses and municipalities in Southern Nevada. He says that this includes fence and gate systems that range from economical perimeter fences to much more sophisticated electronic access systems. Maciel stated that they cater to both small and large Las Vegas businesses. These businesses rely on A1 Fence LV to provide them with superior quality gate and fence solutions that our quality installed in a way that ensures the safety and security of that business?s staff, their customers, and their facilities. The company owner noted that they have been involved in such gate and fencing projects as those that are placed around educational facilities, sports complexes, and many of the areas famous casinos.

The company owner contributes his success not only to selling the job when they are asked to bid on a project but he says that he sells what his values are as a business owner to their customers too.
