We Buy Houses is a house buying company that offers cash for houses, mobile homes, land, duplexes, and all other types of real estate in Greenville and the whole upstate area in South Carolina. The company has released a blog post detailing the steps that sellers can take to sell their home when it is occupied by lots of people. The blog post can be accessed at <https://webuyhousesgreenville.com/how-to-sell-a-house-when-lots-of-people-live-there-in-duncan-sc/>.

According to the company's spokesperson, Dan Dambrosio, when a house has many residents, special care has to be taken to make sure that the house gets sold quickly. He says, "Usually, it takes a few months to offload a property when the client goes through realtors or other traditional real estate agents. When you come to us, that time gets cut down to weeks instead of months. To ensure that the clients have the best and fastest experience, we ask them to check on a few things. Through our experience, we have pinpointed the exact tasks needed to complete the sale with the least amount of friction. This saves the clients both time and money. We published the blog post to educate potential clients on the steps they need to take to quickly sell their house especially if a lot of people are living in it."

The blog post says that, if possible, the home should be professionally cleaned before selling. They also recommend professionally staging the house to put the best foot forward. The important takeaway is to reduce clutter and to make the property as presentable as possible. Next, the blog post recommends getting rid of as much junk as possible. This can be old clothes, toys, books, or any other nonessential items. This reduces the time taken to pack and move, effectively enabling a faster sale.

For the essential items that can't be thrown away, the blog post recommends organizing and tucking them away in drawers and closets so that they are not readily visible. The blog post also recommends scheduling all the property showings on a particular day so that there is no pressure to keep the property clean and maintained every day, the latter of which can be a burden on families. The blog post says that it also helps to have everyone living under the house contribute to the cleaning and organizing process.

Dan adds, "We buy houses in Duncan SC, Greenville and the whole upstate area in South Carolina. We are always trying to give our clients the best deal possible. That process just gets smoother if they help themselves by following the simple rules from our informative blog posts. We are confident that your house will absolutely sell quicker if you follow that advice. It is a win-win situation for both of us."

We Buy Houses Greenville promises a quick turnaround time, usually in weeks, on the home buying process. They claim to buy houses from the sellers with no required repairs, no mandatory inspections, no third party agents, no hidden fees, and no external commissions. The company claims to achieve this level of seamlessness through the elimination of middlemen and banks. The company maintains that it does not depend on inspections and loan approvals to make the home buying decision. The company asserts that once they reach an agreement with a client, they do not alter its terms and always close the deal on the agreed-upon date.

The company has a form on its website that enables them to receive a cash offer as soon as possible. Potential clients need to enter their address, phone number, and email id to enable the company representatives to contact them. The company also lists its phone number +1-864-477-2433 on the website for the clients who prefer a direct phone conversation. We Buy Houses Greenville claims to be a family-owned company that follows family values. The website lists honesty and transparency as its core values.
