Rancho Cucamonga, Calif. ? Drain Experts has been serving the local community as a 24-hour plumber in Rancho Cucamonga, CA since 2006. As a trusted plumber in the area, Drain Experts keeps a close eye on safe-water laws in California. The company is currently highlighting the safe-water efforts within local childcare facilities. Currently, mandate AB 2370 requires childcare facilities to test all water within the facilities for lead.

A recent report from The University of California Los Angeles (UCLA) Luskin Center is suggesting that mandate AB 2370 needs new strategies for testing to be implemented. The state has an established budget of $5 million for childcare facilities water testing, however; the recent report release from UCLA Luskin Center suggests that in order for the mandate to be followed and fully effective the state may need to increase the budget from anywhere to five or 10 times the amount.

With lead exposure being a threat to children and their families, causing lowered IQ, hearing loss, and even learning disabilities mandate AB 2370 is a step in the right direction for the state. However, the mandate still needs to make large strides. The recently released report suggests reaching out to childcare providers, water utility specialties, and environmental advocates to pinpoint the shortcomings of the mandate and to come up with creative solutions to protect young children.
