Federal Heights, Colorado based Celltronix recently released their newest product, which is a multiple USB port car charger. The charger has been designed to be compatible with a number of mobile gadgets from cell phones to tablets, while being safe to use.

Spokesperson for Celltronix, Jaime, recently commented about the product release. He explained, "The multiple USB port will work with iPhone, iPad, Samsung phones, and just about any other phone or tablet that you can buy. For example, it can be used as an iPhone 5 car charger."

Some cell phone chargers and/or batteries have been known to become unstable. Stories in the past about phones exploding and causing injury to their users have frightened some consumers into only using the safest of charging accessories. Many cell phone manufacturers warn against using chargers that are not an original manufacturer's product, or that are not proven to be safe for use with specific electronics. This is one reason by the above charger has been released: for safety.

Celltronix has designed their charger to be safe when in use, preventing overcharging, overheating, and overcurrent. By automatically shutting off when a device is charged, it eliminates the possibility of overcharging batteries which can cause damage to the phone, and make the battery unstable. The company also offers a lifetime limited warranty on the charger, which currently has a 100 percent positive rating on Amazon.

"We couldn't be happier about the reviews we have received about this charger," stated Jaime. "Granted that this is a relatively new product, practically every customer to date has given it a great review, and we really appreciate it."

Celltronix offers a variety of consumer electronic accessories, the multiport charging being the latest. The company is a division of Hoffco Distribution, Inc. who has more than 25 years of experience in the consumer electronics industry. Hoffco brands provide consumers with everything from cellular accessories to eyewear and flashlights.

Celltronix has hinted about new products being released in the future, although no specific information about those products has become available. "We'll just see where the USB charging port takes us," states Jaime. More about Celltronix can be seen on their official website or their Facebook page. A full list of the types and brands of compatible electronics can be viewed on the product page.
