

Homeowners Advised To Install Screenrooms Ahead Of Autumn

August 13, 2020

August 13, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

O'Fallon, MO based Raintight Decks & Screenrooms is urging local homeowners to consider getting screen enclosures for their homes ahead of the approaching autumn season. The company specializes in building screen rooms, under decking systems and more for their customers, and their advice has often proven invaluable to many in their community. They have been in operation since 2007.

Anne Seibert of Raintight Decks & Screenrooms states, "It may be hot now, but the cooler weather of early autumn will be here soon. This is a great time to get a screen enclosure installed to increase your outdoor living space and give you the freedom to enjoy your local environment without fear of interference from either the elements or insects. Raintight gives you many different styles to choose from, including custom-built screen rooms, and our porch-style screen room is one of the most popular types among our customers."

The company is also aware that many, if not most, homeowners will be tired of having to spend most of their time indoors due to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. Seibert states here that, "Many studies have shown that the smallest exposure to greenery and the outdoors can have an immensely positive impact on both our emotional and physical health. If you were on the fence about getting a screen enclosure for your home, this is probably the best time to make the decision to go forward with it. It is a difficult time for all of us, and anything you can do to alleviate the distress both you and your loved ones feel is worth the investment. Naturally, Raintight would be proud to build everyone in our community a high quality screen room, and our services are available for extremely attractive rates."

Raintight's porch screenrooms, for instance, have long been a customer favorite. Seibert explains that midwesterners are known to spend more time enjoying the outdoors than Americans elsewhere in the country, but this enjoyment can be dampened by them having to deal with pests, insects, wind-blown debris and rain. Fortunately, a porch screen room can remedy this issue, allowing homeowners to spend more time breathing in the essence of the outdoors without also having to deal with its annoyances. She also notes here that this type of upgrade has a very practical advantage: it increases the available living space and adds to the property value as well.

Homeowners should also be aware that installing a screen room is likely to be less expensive than they expect. According to Seibert, those who wish to get a screen room will find that all materials are pre-manufactured, delivered to their home and installed directly by their contractor. This simplifies the process, in turn bringing down costs—and these savings are passed on to the customer. It also means that screen rooms take less time to construct, minimizing how much the house's residents are disturbed during construction.

The value of the company's services is reflected in the glowing reviews they receive online. Peter Balogh's 5-Star Google review for Raintight Decks & Screenrooms says, "The 3-member crew of RainTight Decks did an excellent, quality job in a professional manner. They had many years of professional experience, knew how to work with the materials and paid attention to details. They were excellent communicators and were responsive to our special requests. They completed the job on schedule to our satisfaction. I highly recommend RainTight Decks."

Marcia Sullivan's 5-Star review for their underdecking efforts is similarly enthusiastic, stating that, "RainTight is an amazing product and company. Finally, someone figured out a great and long-term solution to proper underdecking that is both rain tight and attractive. The company installed a modest under-deck system for my balcony deck that hangs over my front porch. I won't ever worry again about water buildup, wet and decaying deck wood or getting wet beneath my balcony!"
