New Medical Spa: Teresa Camden MD, FACSM, based in Glen Allen, Virginia, has announced that they specialize in injectable dermal fillers. Teresa Camden MD, FACSM, is a leading cosmetic medicine practitioner with more than 20 years of experience. They offer various health and aesthetic solutions but most of all, they specialize in dermal fillers, which can be used to lift and tighten the skin in any part of the body. These dermal fillers can stimulate the body to produce collagen and elastin and grow new skin. This results into tighter skin and sculpting of the neck, arms, thighs, and abs. The results of the treatment can last for two to four years.

Specifically, they use Radiesse dermal fillers, which medical science has already shown for many years to be capable of stimulating the growth of collagen when put in the face, resulting in a tightening of the skin. Recent medical research has shown that if Radiesse is mixed with saline and lidocaine, it will tighten the skin wherever it is injected. It has been observed that diluting Radiesse with saline and lidocaine will not provide the tissue expansion that usually occurs when it is put on the face. Instead, the diluted Radiesse dermal filler functions as a stimulant for the creation of new elastin and collagen with a skin tightening effect.

Aside from dermal fillers for skin tightening, the New Medical Spa also offers other services. These include: Latisse; wrinkles treatment; Kybella; weight loss medication; JUVÉDERM; chemical peel; Botox; B-12 injections for weight loss, retinol & skin care, vampire facelift, and the Sculptra butt lift. Those who would like to learn more about the New Medical Spa may want to follow their Facebook page.

Latisse is a bimatoprost ophthalmic solution for the purpose of stimulating natural eyelash growth. Meanwhile, they also use dermal fillers to eliminate wrinkles. The dermal fillers will smooth out the skin by helping reduce the appearance of moderate to deep wrinkles. They may use one of the clinical proven fillers, such as Radiesse®, JUVÉDERM®, and Belotero®, to fill those areas that have lost some volume.

Kybella, meanwhile, is used to get rid of fat in certain areas of the body. Its main component is a synthetic form of deoxycholic acid, which is naturally found in the body and its function is to break down and absorb fat. Thus, when Kybella is injected into the body, it will destroy fat cell deposits, and once these have broken down, the cells won't be able to accumulate fat any longer. The results of the Kybella injections would be permanent as long as the patient doesn't put on additional weight in the future.

They also provide weight loss medications that can be used to jumpstart a person's weight loss journey. Candidates for weight loss medication, include those who have: Type II diabetes; a body mass index (BMI) over 27; high blood pressure (hypertension); high blood cholesterol; and a family history of obesity. Those who have one of the above conditions should list all of their medications and their dosages before consulting with Dr. Camden.

The New Medical Spa also offers chemical peels for skin treatment. Chemical peels contain a mixture of clinical grade solutions that are applied on the skin. These will then penetrate through the uppermost layer of the skin so that it will blister. A number of days after the treatment, the blistered layer of skin will begin to shed. And after the shedding process, a new layer of skin that is supple and smooth is left behind. These chemical peels can be customized and adjusted by the practitioner to provide a solution for specific skin problems, such as wrinkles and fine lines, acne and oily skin, inflammation and redness, and hyperpigmentation and melasma.

Those who are interested in learning more about the dermal fillers and other aesthetic medicine services offered by the New Medical Spa may want to check out their website, or contact them on the telephone, or through email.
