August 31, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Valencia, California: After selling out on Amazon, The Healing Touch Premium Scar Gel is now back in stock. The company has stocked Amazon with a one oz. jar and a two oz. jar. The scar gel company announced that though they are expecting to sell out again, they are increasing production to meet demand.

"Our Premium scar gel has so many applications that it serves a vast audience," stated Raul Meza, co-founder of The Healing Touch. "We have gotten a great response from people who use it for their acne scars as well as people who use it for their surgical scars. Women who have had breast surgery, though be it an augmentation, reduction, or breast flap have been leaving amazing feedback on their results. The truth is that it works for all kinds of scars including scars from C-sections, car accidents or burns."

The premium scar gel is a silicone based scar gel that creates a protective barrier over the wound. This allow the wound to heal properly while protecting it from the outside environment. It is used on fresh surgery scars as well as older scars. The scar gel is applied twice a day and often customers report seeing results in a weeks' time.

The Premium Scar Gel has been selling on Amazon for almost two years now but is known to sell out frequently. At times his has made the scar gel hard to obtain. Free shipping is available through Amazon and usually arrives within two days of ordering for Prime Members.

"We always put the customer first," stated Meza. "By doing so we acknowledge that there are a few scars that don't fade to customer's satisfaction. No product or procedure will do that 100% of the time. For those customers we offer a 60 day full money back guarantee. In fact if the customer is not happy with their results, and we mean over the moon happy, then that is a good enough reason for a full refund," stated Meza.
