August 19, 2020 -
In a morning announcement, the parent company of UltimateFlags.com, Ultimate Flags Inc, announced that it was expanding its social media presence. The company already runs two blogs and its venerable web store, trusted by thousands and thousands of visitors and customers each year.

In order to better meet today?s online needs, the company has begun a crucial expansion campaign utilizing social media. Said J. Hough, company spokesperson, ?We understand that the current situation calls for more ways for our company to deliver its message and bring its products to people looking for it.?

She added, ?Social media has grown in leaps and bounds, especially during these times when we have to be socially responsible. In addition, we?ve quite an increase in online shopping. Therefore, what we need to do is go where the people are and not just wait for them to come to us.?

To that effect, the company has a social media presence in all of the traditional platforms like Facebook,

Twitter, Instagram, Pinterest, Facebook, YouTube and so on. However, the company is constantly looking for other online platforms to expand and better reach its potential customers.

However, continued Ms. Hough, ?We want to ensure that while we are expanding, we can maintain the customer service for which we?re not. We are not willing to compromise quality for the sake of expansion. They go hand-in-hand.?

Added Ultimate Flags owner, G. Hough, ?We do what we do very well. We make the best quality custom flags in the space. And we do it at a competitive price. More importantly, I am not willing to deliver a anything other than high quality custom flags and banners. If our expansion means cutting down on quality, then we need to stop and rethink our expansion.
