

Newly Revised Website Designed To Benefit Women At Midlife

September 28, 2015

September 28, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Better Beyond Coaching Solutions, based in Raleigh, North Carolina, recently announced a website revision. The company has revamped their site so that viewers will find information faster and easier, and they've added a few extra benefits.

The company expects that updating their site will enable them to better reach women all over the world, and offer them a host of helpful tips and coaching sessions that enable them to work through a number of life issues. "We just thought it was time to upgrade," states Diane Adkins, spokesperson for the company. "We've added a lot of extra information with tips and articles for our viewers."

Better Beyond Coaching Solutions offers coaching and insights for women, and has recently expanded their information to provide categorized program details. The site offers solutions and strategies to women in their 40s and 50s, focusing on ways to live peaceful and fulfilling lives.

"Our philosophy is simple," states Diane Adkins. "We believe women are important, and that they have value to their families, friends, and the entire world. We want to highlight those points, and our newly revamped site will help us to do that."

New categories for information include tips for career, divorce recovery, finances, and positive thinking. Diane has also included a blog that offers a bit of personal experience to go along with the topics. Women can find articles related to relationships and how to deal with workplace, and life stress.

The newly redesigned website also offers a coaching client portal where members can access a number of features, including private sessions and feedback from their personal life coach. A complimentary session is also offered.

Diane Adkins founded the company after life experience prompted her to want to help other women. She explained that while their old website provided some benefits, their newly designed site will be much more helpful to women who are looking for solutions to a number of problems that they may be facing, and they can gain motivation and insights into happier living.
