September 15, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Aaron Kosins MD, a plastic surgeon in Newport Beach, CA, has revealed why he is excited to use Natrelle breast implant devices for his breast augmentation procedures. He points out that while the Natrelle implants have only recently become available to US plastic surgeons, he has had an extraordinary experience with them. There is a wide range of gel types and shapes available with Natrelle, thus greatly expanding what he can offer to his patients. In addition, the various sizes and projections have all been designed to provide a soft feel, allowing the patient to get that fullness that is perfect for herself and her body.

Aaron Kosins explains, "Breast augmentation is a procedure that enlarges the size of your breasts and is one of the most popular procedures in the United States. This is done with the use of silicone or saline implants typically placed below the muscle of your chest wall. Placing an implant under your breast tissue will enlarge your current breast, however, an implant itself will do very little to change the shape of your breast or nipple-areola position. Using current techniques and technologies, my patients can expect to return to normal social activities and be out to dinner or shopping the same night as their breast augmentation."

He adds, "Because no two women are the same, I always ask my patients about what they believe is their ideal breast, and then I discuss with them the various options, which have been greatly expanded with the availability of Natrelle implants.?

The first or primary breast augmentation for a patient requires a number of important decisions that will affect her breast for the rest of her life. Aaron Kosins' goal is the optimal breast size and shape, while balancing what the patient's tissue will allow. Of key importance is maximum implant coverage with breast tissue, including how the implants will affect the overlying breast tissue. The patient's breast will be able to accommodate certain shapes and sizes of implants, depending on the breast envelope and tissue quality. Aaron Kosins wants to emphasize that the breast implants will have to be changed every 10 years on the average and women in their 20s or 30s may possibly have to undergo half a dozen breast augmentation surgeries during their life. That is why the first breast augmentation is extremely important for him to really understand what the patient wants and for the patient to understand the various possibilities.

He also provides breast revision or breast implant exchange procedures. These are for women who have various issues, such as implant malposition resulting in too low or loss of cleavage; deflation; asymmetry; capsular contracture; and implant maintenance.

Aaron Kosins can also provide a mastopexy or breast lift, which can be performed due to a number of reasons. It should be noted that breast augmentation doesn't significantly modify the shape of the breasts. If the breast skin is droopy, the nipple areolas are asymmetric, or the breast is losing shape, a mastopexy may be performed. The procedure will not just lift the breasts but it will also provide them with more projection or a more coned and less flat appearance.

For those who want it, a mastopexy may be performed at the same time as an augmentation. This combined procedure will modify the size, projection, and shape of the breasts. However, whether a patient is a good candidate for the combined procedure will have to be discussed in detail because it is one of the most complicated procedures in breast surgery due to the fact that several variables have been combined. Both breast augmentation and breast lift are outpatient procedures that are performed under general anesthesia. Through the use of cutting-edge technologies and techniques, most of his patients can return home and may actually go out for dinner or shopping the same evening.
