

Norristown General Contractor Announces The Completion Of A Major Luxury Composite Deck Project

September 21, 2015

September 21, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Jack Strogus, spokesman and President of PenVal Construction, a Norristown PA General Contractor recently announced the completion of a Luxury Composite Deck project in the King of Prussia, PA area. The job involved the demolition of a 30 year old, 320 square foot, pressure treated wood deck, pouring new concrete footers, replacing the old deck as well as expanding the deck another 320 square feet, and adding a small porch roof.

Strogus explains that the homeowners were concerned because the deck was so old and showing signs of structural weakness that they might have a problem. Their concerns were also heightened because the deck was 10 feet off the ground. Strogus also mentioned the homeowner was hoping to reduce the annual maintenance and upkeep costs, in both time and money, with the new deck.

Because of the extensive wear on the deck, the deterioration of many of the supporting framework and posts, and the homeowner's desire to have a sturdy, low maintenance deck, the project required expertise in many different areas such as demolition and debris removal, carpentry, roofing, and a current, working, knowledge of today's new composite decking materials.

The company has been in business for more than 22 years, providing both residential and commercial construction for the region. They have been called on for projects of all kinds including both composite and pressure treated decking, kitchen and bathroom remodeling, home renovations, basement renovations, water damage mitigation and all other sorts of repair projects. As they point out on their website, "You name it and in the last 22 years our experienced, local, craftsmen have repaired it, improved it, designed it, or built it."

The company enjoys a great reputation with many of their past customers repeatedly coming back to have their next home remodeling project done. Strogus explains that much of that reputation stems from the combined experience of the company's two co-founders, himself and Joe Cacciola, who both worked in the Construction industry before PenVal Construction came into existence.

Jack Strogus and Joe Cacciola joined forces in 1993 bringing all of their experiences with them when they created the new company. They take pride in doing their job "right, doing it well, and doing it quickly," which is why they are able to enjoy such a strong reputation in the community.

The company, with a website at www.penalconstruction.com, provides services to a large number of towns in the area including, Audubon, Bala Cynwyd, Berwyn, Bryn Mawr, Chadds Ford, Chester Springs, Devon, Eagleville, Gladwyne, Glen Mills, Gwynedd, Haverford, Kennett Square, King of Prussia, Malvern, Media, Newtown Square, Norristown, Paoli, Phoenixville, Thornton, Valley Forge, Villanova, Wayne, West Chester, and the Main Line.
