

Mobile Auto Mechanic Keeps Denver Drivers On The Road

October 14, 2020

October 14, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

CO-based My Mobile Mechanic of Denver is pleased to report that they are still able to accommodate on-site automobile repairs as the COVID-19 pandemic continues to progress. Their services represent an immensely convenient and safe option for car owners who want to ensure their vehicles are in top condition while maintaining safe social distancing.

The key to My Mobile Mechanic of Denver's success is their ability to visit their customers and perform repairs at virtually any location. Given that customers find this service quite valuable for many reasons, the company has been hard at work ensuring that the pandemic will not affect their availability. Richard Hansen of My Mobile Mechanic of Denver says, "We understand that our community is rightly concerned with protecting themselves as we wait for this crisis to be resolved. However, as every good driver knows, our vehicles cannot afford to go without receiving proper maintenance for too long. We consider it our duty to ensure that you won't have to make a choice between your vehicle and your family's safety."

My Mobile Mechanic of Denver can reach a customer at a variety of locations, and the places they commonly visit include homes, offices or even highways. Customers often call the My Mobile Mechanic of Denver team to their home or office to get essential maintenance or minor repairs carried out but the company is also able to tackle more challenging tasks, such as breakdowns, that occur on the road. Prior to the COVID-19 outbreak and all the obstacles that followed in its wake, this aspect of their services was invaluable due to the fact that it allowed drivers to avoid having to call a tow truck, which would in turn mean they would incur additional fees. My Mobile Mechanic of Denver, however, can reach them wherever they are stranded and get the vehicle running again in short order ? at no additional expense. This has the bonus effect of ensuring that the customer has to endure a much shorter wait to have their vehicle back as well.

Following the outbreak, these advantages have only grown in number. Today, fewer are willing to take their car into the shop since this also means they have to leave the safety of their homes. Fortunately, My Mobile Mechanic of Denver can take all the hassle and responsibility of maintaining safe social distancing upon themselves without having to put any customer at risk. In addition to this, the company has been following (and continues to implement) all guidelines issued by the CDC regarding safe working spaces and the sanitization of tools.

"Your car is one of the most important parts of your life at any given moment," observes Hansen. "Alongside the emotional investment many of us have with our vehicles, they are also often our most reliable mode of transportation. Without a car that runs smoothly, we would have to rely on public transportation to get to work, go out for groceries and so on. Needless to say, this is inadvisable in these times, and you should stick to your own vehicle if possible. The same is true if you have a breakdown in the middle of your journey. Time is precious, now more than ever, and few of us can afford to take the risk of being late for work or missing other essential appointments. If you need your car fixed quickly, wherever you are, please call us."

Another aspect of My Mobile Mechanic of Denver's services that makes them highly popular with customers is their competitive pricing. The service does not rent out any garages since they provide repairs entirely on a mobile basis. Given that they have no rent to pay for premises, the company is able to pass these savings on to their customers.

More information regarding the company's services can be found on their official website and other online resources. Customers may reach out to Richard Hansen to follow up on any further inquiries or to get directions to their office. Those interested in keeping up with the company's latest news and offers are also welcome to connect with My Mobile Mechanic of Denver through their preferred social media platforms.
