TNL Helps Florida Residents Survive COVID-19 Crisis

September 02, 2020 -
The Net Lender (TNL), a financial aid provider, would like to reach out to Floridians who may be in need of financial aid during the COVID-19 pandemic. This crisis has had a very serious effect on many people?s lives, both those infected and those who have simply lost their jobs as a result of the stay-at-home orders and failing economy. Many people in Florida are struggling to get the funds they need to make ends meet, and TNL is ready to help them as much as possible. Their site can be found at https://thenetlender.com/locations/car-title-loans-sarasota-fl-main-st/.

Recently, a New York Times investigation found that the number of young people dying from COVID-19 in Florida is on the rise. While the crisis is mainly killing the elderly population, it affects everyone in one way or another, and recent studies have shown that there has been a shift in who the virus is killing. More people in Florida under 65 died than people over the age of 90 in July, and more people from the ages of 25 to 44 died compared to the previous four months of the pandemic combined.

Florida?s economy has also been hit particularly hard. Unemployment figures point to 11.3% of residents, about 1.1 million people, remaining unemployed in Florida. This is up from 10.2% in July. Certain sectors, such as financial services and education, are looking to return to work ? but many industries are still struggling to recover from the virus, like the leisure and hospitality industries (which are considered to be the bedrock of Florida?s economy).

Richard Florida, a professor at the University of Toronto?s School of Cities and Rotman School of Management, had this to say about the situation in Florida and how it is being handled, ?South Florida and all American communities are failing to think strategically about economic recovery. This is like a natural disaster like a hurricane has hit the entire country. [Thinking strategically] means repositioning our economy from a tourism, hospitality and real estate economy that?s based on deal making to a real knowledge economy that?s based on some stable economic sectors like startups, finance and headquarters, and that?s a real lift for our region.?

With the situation in Florida being so dire, it may become necessary to find alternative sources of cash, especially in emergencies. Through their website and other portals, The Net Lender offers financial aid to their customers, and has helped many people get the cash they need to make it through a crisis. With many people losing their jobs or simply making a lot less money than they did before, the likelihood of one needing emergency funds today is higher than ever. Banks and other traditional sources of financial aid might not be the ideal option for many people as the application process often takes a long time, and banks often require that the applicant have good credit (which is not always possible). TNL helps their customers acquire the cash they need to cover unexpected expenses, using the latter?s car as collateral.

TNL is unique in that their financial aid services are hassle-free and convenient. They have many locations across the country, and one can find the closest office on TNL?s online platforms. TNL offers a pre-qualification process that allows potential customers to quickly find out if they qualify or not.

?We have been helping customers acquire the money they need for many years,? the financial aid provider says. ?We work hard to provide honest and fair rates for quick loans and will work with you to set up a payment plan that works with your income. We do not have hidden fees or extra costs that will haunt you later. We can help you create a repayment plan that won?t leave you broke until your loan is paid off.
