

Palisades Mazda Announces Availability of New Mazda CX 9 Inventory for Sale

September 02, 2020

September 02, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Palisades Mazda, an auto dealership based in Nyack, New York, is pleased to announce the availability of new 2020 Mazda CX-9 inventory for sale in spite of the shortage due to the pandemic. The new 2020 Mazda CX-9 are also available for lease at the car dealership at $244 per month for 36 months, up to August 31, 2020. This mid-size crossover SUV provides the highest possible safety rating according to the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety (IIHS).

Frank Benedict, general manager at Palisades Mazda, says, "The Mazda CX-9 is such a popular model in Nyack. This is because the all-new Mazda CX-9 is the perfect 3-row crossover to power your way to soccer practice or a night at the opera. It is also reliable even during extreme weather conditions. It makes use of predictive i-ACTIV AWD® to keep you on the road and in control. This advanced system monitors everything from outside temperature to braking patterns and then adjusts power delivery to help give you optimal traction before your wheels ever slip."

Furthermore, the CX-9 is equipped with Apple CarPlay® integration, which allows people to connect with the outside world while inside their CX-9. The vehicle is designed to provide everything from safety to comfort to connectivity, and one can rest assured they are getting everything a modern vehicle can deliver when they lease a Mazda from Palisades Mazda. The car dealership is focused on offering you the best possible deals for the new 2020 Mazda CX-9. They also guarantee an upfront and transparent price policy.

The auto dealership has also compared the Mazda CX-9 vs Toyota Highlander and found that the Mazda is less expensive and has more torque and better fuel economy. The 2020 Mazda CX-9 has a retail price of $35,710 while the 2020 Toyota Highlander is at $36,800. The Mazda CX-9 is better with regards to fuel economy at 22 mpg for city driving and 28 mpg for highway driving, while the Toyota Highlander is at 20 mpg for city driving and 28 mpg for highways. The torque for the Mazda CX-9 is at 310 lb-ft while the Toyota Highlander has 263 lb-ft.

Highlighted features for the Mazda CX-9 include its: navigation system, lane departure warning system, distance pacing cruise control, leather upholstery, automatic temperature control, emergency communication system, power moonroof, and wireless phone connectivity.

The predictive i-ACTIV AWD® is an advanced system that even during perfect weather, can actively help by adjusting power delivery to ensure optimum road grip. Furthermore, the CX-9 is provided with an elegant and luxurious cabin that provides a premium driving experience. It has three rows for comfortable seating, with more third-row legroom and more volume compared to its corresponding competitors.

Frank Benedict says, "Make sure you check our available CX-9 variations, and choose from our extensive inventory of features, colors and pricing options. We also want to protect your budget by offering regular price discounts and deals. Just check the CX-9 deals and get informed on how you can save even more money when leasing or purchasing the new Mazda CX-9."
