Promises Kept Products, which is based in Reston, VA, has just launched a unique duffel bag, which was designed and organized for general-purpose travel, but can easily cross over for gym and locker use. It comes in a two-tone blue color, and it has special features that makes it different from other duffel bags.

"The Chesapeake Duffel Bag has three unique features," explains Clay Dewey from Promises Kept Products. "First of all, it has drop down lower compartments for shoes and wet items. Secondly, it is made from Double 1680D polyester, which is one of the toughest materials on the market today. Thirdly, it has an internal zipper around the bottom, so that the upper and lower compartments can be joined together."

The duffel bag comes with the standard adjustable shoulder strap, an external mesh water bottle holder, two carrying handles on the top that can be held together with a padded velcro-secured wrap, a front zippered convenience pocket to store valuables, another velcro-secured side pocket, and four rubber feet to keep the bag off the dirty airport floor.

Clay Dewey explains: "We wanted to produce a duffel bag that would last a lifetime while at the same time offer several convenient features not normally found in most duffel bags. We also wanted the product to be both practical and beautiful. We believe we have achieved those goals with the Chesapeake Duffel Bag and we can't wait to see how many other uses can be found for it."

Promises Kept Products was founded by Clay Dewey in 2014. The company's vision is to identify the best possible products wherever they exist and sell them on Amazon at an affordable price. Dewey himself worked for the Department of Defense at the Pentagon. His role was to find military products all over the world that could be offered to the US Military at the most affordable price. During that time, Dewey would procure a number of sample items and have them tested in the US to make sure they were of high value and met all necessary requirements. If he deemed them to meet all the proper criteria, the Department of Defense would purchase the products to be used. This is the same process that Promises Kept Products now uses in order to offer the American public useful and affordable items.

For Promises Kept Products, the goal is evident in the company name. They strive to provide honest and dependable customer service to anyone who shops with them.
