The Corporatethief Beats Changes The Music Game With Rap Instrumentals

September 11, 2020

September 11, 2020 -
The Corporatethief Beats, a UK based music producer and music marketer, is pleased to announce that they are providing rap instrumentals for purchase. The Corporatethief Beats is focused on helping musicians find high quality hip hop beats and obtain the best music marketing advice.

Daniel Hartnett of The Corporatethief Beats says, ?If you?re an artist who is looking for rap instrumentals that you can use in your mixtapes, albums, singles or music videos, you don?t need to look any further. At The Corporatethief Beats, you can find any and all kinds of rap instrumentals to suit your needs. Our beats have been used by hip hop artists, podcasters and content creators who take advantage of our 100% royalty free instrumentals.?

Interested parties can find over 150 rap instrumentals on The Corporatethief Beats? website. These beats? styles are influenced by famous artists, such as Kanye, Eminem, Drake, Travis Scott and more, and they come in genres like trap beats, old school instrumentals, abstract rap beats, freestyle beats, pop rap beats and new school beats. According to Hartnett, The Corporatethief Beats? goal is to provide hip hop artists with high-quality hip hop music production at a fair price, adding value to their careers with dynamic content.

Artists will also be glad to know that all of the rap instrumental beats on the Corporatethief Beats website are sample free and are 100% original productions produced by Daniel Hartnett. This means that the artists are free to sell their song on iTunes, Spotify, Amazon and any number of other music distribution websites. When someone purchases the lease license from the beat player or promotional beat backs, they will get instant access to use The Corporatethief Beats? rap instrumentals in high quality .WAV and .MP3 files which they can use for their projects ? and they get to keep 100% of the royalties they earn. The Corporatethief Beats also assists up and coming rappers in more ways than just providing a variety of beats. On the company website, Daniel Hartnett maintains a blog in which he shares useful marketing and promoting advice. In addition to the blog, the website also maintains a sizable list of curated resources that will be helpful for rap artists who are looking to make a name for themselves. Artists can find everything from excellent web hosting services, guides to help improve their music skills, tools and softwares to make beats with, social media promotion tools, SEO tools and more on the list.

Daniel Hartnett started his professional music production journey at the Galway Technical Institute where he studied live sound engineering and music production. At Galway, he got his first taste of Logic Pro X, which he now uses for 95% of the hip hop beats he produces. After studying at Galway, he continued his music production education at The Academy of Sound Dublin where he graduated with a Higher Diploma in Music Production and Sound Engineering. Simultaneously, Hartnett also studied Digital Marketing at Dublin Business School and received a Diploma In Digital Marketing. He started The Corporatethief Beats website back in 2010 to showcase his beats and share everything he has learned throughout his career and education with his fellow music makers.

Hartnett says, ?Music is such a wide and varied industry, and it?s not always easy for newcomers to earn their place. With Corporatethief Beats, I am hoping to do what I can to assist artists, both new and old, create and innovate. Whether it?s by producing beats or by sharing the wealth of knowledge I have amassed, my primary goal is to be a reliable source of help and advice.?
