Alpha Therapeutics LLC, a private label CBD oil manufacturer, has announced that they have recently introduced a hybrid CBD and CBG muscle cream that helps soothe sore muscles. It contains 1000 mg of cannabidiol (CBD) and 500 mg of cannabigerol (CBG). And it has been ascertained to be free from tetrahydrocannabinol (THC), which is the primary psychoactive compound in cannabis that causes the high sensation. It is for dermal use and it is to be applied liberally to tight and sore muscles.

CBD oil is not as well-known as CBD oil but there is increasing evidence from research studies that it may also provide many of the benefits being offered by CBD oil. CBG is also a cannabinoid like CBD oil and is found to occur naturally in hemp and cannabis plants. Furthermore, CBD is regarded as the "mother of cannabinoids" because it is thought that a number of cannabinoids originate as a form of CBG.

It has been observed that there is less CBG in the more mature hemp and cannabis plants. This is because CBD and THC are naturally synthesized from CBG with the result that the amount of CBG in the said plants declines as they age. But CBG is becoming more in demand because it has no psychoactive effects, unlike THC. This implies that the therapeutic benefits from CBG can be used without the person having to worry about experiencing the effects of THC on the mind.

Meanwhile, the hybrid CBD/CBG muscle cream recently released by Alpha Therapeutics, a provider of wholesale CBD products for physicians, aside from CBD and CBG oil, has OptiMSM? & arnica extract, and other ingredients, such as organic aloe leaf juice, organic coconut oil, menthol, camphor, emulsifying wax, stearic acid, cetyl alcohol, hydroxyethyl cellulose, glycerin, sweet basil leaf oil, black pepper oil, Roman chamomile flower oil, German chamomile flower oil, cinnamon leaf oil, citronella oil, eucalyptus leaf oil, helichrysum flower oil, ginger root oil, and more.

An increasing number of studies show that CBG oil has several potential therapeutic applications. These include pain relief; ability to function as natural muscle relaxant; antimicrobial, antifungal, and antibacterial properties; anti-anxiety and antidepressant properties; the fact that it may help in managing bladder dysfunction; anti-tumor effects; neuroprotective effect; the possibility that it may help in managing psoriasis; the fact that it may help soothe inflammatory bowel disease; the fact that it may help strengthen the bones; and the fact that it may help in treating glaucoma.

Another organic CBG oil product that was recently released by Alpha Therapeutics is a 2:1 CBG/CBD pain stick with 2000 mg of CBD and 1000 mg of CBG. This product is to be applied topically at the area of the pain for temporary relief of pain from joint discomfort and strained muscles. It has also been assured to be free from THC and it is being offered with a no rub applicator to avoid messy use. Its organic content is about 95 percent and its ingredients include CBD, CBG, organic yellow beeswax, eucalyptus, organic coconut oil, organic peppermint, organic cocoa butter, camphor, Arnica montana, and organic menthol.

Another product with CBG that was recently introduced by Alpha Therapeutics is a 2:1 CBG/CBD premium facial cream. This facial cream contains CBG oils, CBD oils, CoQ10, moisture-boosting hyaluronic acid, and tonifying dimethylethanolamine (DMAE). This product may help in toning, softening, hydrating, and revitalizing skin. It has 500 mg of CBD, 250 mg of CBG, alpha lipoic acid, vitamin C, hyaluronic acid, pro-vitamin B5, vitamin B3, vitamin A, and vegan DMAE. It is also considered as a vegan product because it contains organic sugar maple extract, organic sugar cane extract, organic bilberry fruit extract, organic cranberry fruit extract, organic orange peel extract, organic lemon peel extract, lecithin, organic alcohol, castor oil, tetrasodium glutamate diacetate, xanthan gum, phenoxyethanol, and more.
