St. Louis, Missouri based Banner Construction is reaching out to share that this is the best time for homeowners to carry out any siding installation projects they have in mind. The contractor has a wealth of experience in the industry, and they are always eager to share the benefit of their expertise with their community.

Jessica Benbow of Banner Construction states, "If you are thinking about having James Hardie siding installed in your house, this time of the year is the best to get it scheduled. You get to avoid the long waiting times, as we are not too busy, as well as the cold winter weather. Your house will be in prime condition by the time the holidays roll around, giving it an outstanding, beautiful look that will increase its curb appeal."

While most choose to install new siding for aesthetic reasons, the local contractors state that there are several other considerations that homeowners make when they decide they wish to replace a house's siding. Being able to understand what one can get out of such an endeavor is important, for instance, and a crucial part of the success of an exterior remodeling project.

"When you install new siding, you are effectively protecting your home against certain weather conditions that can damage it over the years," states Benbow. While this is a significant investment, it can end up saving homeowners a significant amount of money in the years to come.

She continues, "If you select the right material, your siding can last for a long time and save you thousands of dollars in repairs and maintenance ? as long as it is installed properly. Premium siding can dramatically reduce your home maintenance, allowing you to spend your leisure time in better ways. The peace of mind that you get from this is invaluable, as you can rest assured that your house is protected against anything that mother nature throws your way."

James Hardie siding offers a wide selection of colors to choose from, allowing homeowners to customize the look of their house according to their preference. Homeowners can choose to either use Hardie Siding Color Plus technology or have it professionally painted by contractors. Both of these are good options, each having their benefits and drawbacks.

ColorPlus Technology has been proven to maintain its color for a long time, as multiple coats are applied during the manufacturing process, making the paint more durable. The finish is cured in a controlled environment between coats for a stronger bond that resists cracking, peeling and chipping.

On the other hand, by installing an unpainted primed siding, homeowners have a broader selection of colors to choose from (there are only 33 presets of ColorPlus Technology). Primed siding is nearly always in stock, while availability can be an issue with other options.

Banner Construction is widely considered one of the best contractors in the St. Louis community due to their extensive experience, attention to detail and the outstanding quality of their services. They are known as the most reliable siding and replacement window contractors, and this reputation extends to several review platforms ? where Banner Construction is among the best-rated companies in the area.

On the Google platform, for one, the local company possesses an outstanding review score of 4.7 out of 5 Stars. One of their most recent reviews, written by Brenda Bertts, says, "We are so happy that we hired Banner Construction to install James Hardie siding on our home! From the initial meeting with Sam Piwowarczyk to the final clean up and inspection, every member of the Banner team was professional, accommodating and meticulous. They delivered the quality they promised, on time and on budget. The final results are terrific! We couldn't ask for more, and we will happily use them for our next home improvement project!"
