

An Emergency Plumber in London, ON Warns Customers Against ?Flushable? Products

September 14, 2020

September 14, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

London, ON ? Triton Plumbing + Service, an emergency plumber in London, ON, is highlighting the hazards of flushing any item other than toilet paper. During this time, many cleaning products and toilet paper can be difficult to find, so ?flushable? products may be a last resort to some. However, despite the claims made on the packaging on these products, they have been found to cause major problems for both homeowners and the local city waste management team.

Products offered as alternatives to toilet paper, often referred to as ?flush-able? wipes, are not as good for pipes as the packaging may claim. Unlike toilet paper, which is made to disintegrate in sewage systems, these wipes are typically made with synthetic materials that do not break down easily. While these items may flush down the toilet, they usually end up stuck within the sewer pipes. Waste management systems are not set up to dispose of any items other than toilet paper, so professionals must go in and clear out clogs cause by these products. The process of clearing out these products may pose hazardous risks to sewage professionals as well as incur high costs for cities. It is recommended that anyone forced to use ?flushable?
