

Savannah Personal Injury Attorney Helps Clients Protect Their Rights

September 21, 2020

September 21, 2020 -
Georgia law firm Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C. - Savannah is sharing insight on what people should do after they are involved in an accident that they believe was caused by another party. As such events often lead to personal injury cases, the firm hopes that this information will spur others to consider hiring an experienced attorney who can fight to get them the compensation they deserve. The team at Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C. has a great deal of expertise in this field as well, and they are ready and willing to help the members of their community pursue a satisfactory settlement.

According to the Savannah personal injury attorney, personal injury law covers a variety of fields, and the community is advised to become familiar with these areas of practice so that they will know exactly what kind of attorney to approach if they find themselves in such situations. The team at Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C. is able to handle personal injury cases with diligence, and their expertise extends to cases involving medical malpractice, car accidents, wrongful death, woker?s compensation, slip and fall accidents, nursing home abuse and so on. Should a victim be unsure whether their case falls under the spectrum of personal injury, they are urged to contact the firm today for confirmation and advice. As Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C. proudly states on their website, one phone call is all it takes for a victim to begin receiving the assistance they need from the firms? attorneys.

?If you have been injured in an accident that took place as a result of another?s party?s negligence, you may be entitled to some form of financial compensation,? says the firm. ?In such events, you should take note that anything you say and do from that point forward can have an effect on the outcome of a case, should you choose to pursue it. As such, we advise you to do two things above all: seek treatment as quickly as possible, then make your way to an attorney who you can trust to guide you through the legal process.?

Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C. adds, however, that these two pieces of advice have been simplified in order to ensure that victims have to remember only what they need the most in the aftermath of an accident. Seeking treatment, for instance, will allow the victim to have their injuries tended, and this is all the more important if the wounds in question are life-threatening. However, this step has an additional purpose in that it generates a medical record of the victim?s injuries that can be presented as proof of their suffering in court. Since the other party?s legal team is likely to argue that the victim has suffered no injuries without proof of this nature (or that any injuries they show were sustained prior to the accident in question, etc.), this can go a long way in convincing a court that the victim requires compensation for their pain.

On the other hand, personal injury cases can get quite complex, and the average person is unlikely to know how to navigate the legal system by themselves. In addition to this, should they be recovering from even mild injuries, they are likely to be physically unable to pursue the case by themselves. As a result, they are advised to seek the help of an attorney. Learn more here: Personal Injury Lawyer Savannah.

However, the advice shared by Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C. on this count does not stop here. According to the firm, lawyers may practice in several areas of the law or they may specialize in one specific sector, and the latter is more likely to win a case as they are less prone to distractions from other sources. As a result, the firm advises accident victims to seek an attorney who is adept in the field of personal injury law. Fortunately for the residents of Albany, Atlanta, Augusta, Columbus, Duluth, Macon, Savannah and Valdosta, this Georgia law firm has made it their mission to be by a new client?s side within 24-48 hours of receiving a call for help.

?Our team of attorneys live and breathe personal injury law, and it is our great pleasure to help you win the compensation you are due,? says the firm. ?We offer you a free case review when you first get in touch, so it is in your best interests to get us on the job as soon as possible. Our firms? comprehensive resources and evidence-gathering capabilities will be put at your disposal when you need us. All you have to do is let us know when and where.?
