Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C. - Columbus has announced that they are advising personal injury victims to consult with a Columbus GA personal injury attorney immediately and never accept an insurance adjuster's offer to settle the case. People who have suffered an injury due to another person's negligence often feel overwhelmed because of the many issues that they need to face, such as rising medical expenses, the pain from the injuries, and missed time from work. In addition to these factors that usually cause stress and anxiety, the personal injury victim may receive calls from an insurance adjuster making an offer to settle the case.

Tim Derrickson, a representative for Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C., says, "Our law firm will not let you accept a lowball offer. We have a team of experienced attorneys and outside experts who will take a look at your case and value it for what it is worth. We will then tell the insurance company what you will accept to settle your claims. The insurance adjuster's only goal is to make money for the insurance company. Your well-being is not their concern, and their settlement offers will usually be far less than the value of your claim."

He adds, "We are not intimidated by insurance companies, and we will not back down from a powerful opponent when you have been injured and your legal rights have been violated. Our Georgia personal injury attorneys are proudly serving Columbus, Georgia and surrounding counties. When we take your case, you get the benefit of our 350 years of combined experience working for you."

Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C. - Columbus is also a car accident law firm Columbus GA accident victims can rely on. Those who have suffered an injury in a motor vehicle accident involving a car, a commercial vehicle, 18-wheeler truck, tractor-trailer, motorcycle or moped, or bus, or even in a pedestrian accident, may want to take advantage of the free consultation offered by the law firm.

The auto accident attorneys at the firm know and comprehend the seriousness of such vehicular accidents and the damages and injuries that may result. If the driver who is at-fault does not have sufficient insurance to compensate the victim, the attorneys will file claims against the victim's uninsured or underinsured motorist insurance policies to make sure that he or she receives full compensation.

They can also offer legal assistance to victims of slip-and-fall accidents, which are some of the most common personal injury claims. This kind of accident can happen in a property where the owner had failed to sufficiently maintain or monitor conditions so as to minimize the risk of people slipping and falling. Uneven surfaces and slippery floors in a building can cause visitors to slip and fall and get injured. Those who are victims of such accidents have to properly document the scene of the accident. Photos of the conditions are vital and getting prompt medical treatment is advisable. It is also a good idea not to talk with an insurance adjuster or a representative of the property owner until he or she has consulted with a lawyer.

They can also help with workplace accidents. The workers' compensation laws of the state of Georgia offer coverage for people who get injured while engaged in their work. In most cases, insurance coverage allows for the injured worker to recover medical expenses and loss of income resulting from the inability work while recovering. In some cases, injured workers may also be able to file a personal injury claim and request for additional damages for the pain and suffering. While such claims are not allowed under the workers' compensation laws, they can be brought against third parties, such as co-workers, who have intentionally or negligently caused the injuries.
