Clearing one's name is an important process especially when legal matters are concerned. When going through this process, it is important to work with a professional expungement attorney. The law office of Purav Bhatt is now offering expungement attorney services in Chicago and the surrounding areas.

According to the law firm's website, "Every time you are arrested for a crime in Illinois, a negative mark appears on your criminal record. Even if you were not convicted after your arrest, your criminal record remains. Having a criminal record can create personal stress and limit your future opportunities. An arrest on your criminal record can make it difficult for you to obtain a job, rent an apartment or home, pursue a degree or professional certification, receive bank loans, and receive student loans. A Chicago Expungement Attorney can help. For many, having a criminal record is life altering and can change the course of one's future. Fortunately, there is a way to ?erase? arrests from your criminal record. Only an experienced Expungement Attorney can best assist you.

The website also explains the meaning of expungement, "The process of clearing an arrest from your criminal record is called an expungement. When you expunge a criminal arrest from your record, you remove the arrest so that it is no longer a public record. This means that future employers and landlords cannot find out about your arrest through a background check. The mistakes you may have made in your past will stay there, allowing you to have a second chance and a limitless future. You may expunge most misdemeanor convictions and can even expunge some felony convictions. If you meet the basic requirements, you may be eligible for an expungement of your criminal record. After your petition is filed, it usually takes about 4-6 months for your arrest to be erased from your record if the state of Illinois grants your request. Consult Purav Bhatt for any questions or concerns you might have."
