London, UK ? LB Plumbing and Heating London have published a new blog article focused on the importance of using client reviews to evaluate a boiler installation company. The article discussed how the right plumbing and heating professional can help guide through understanding a boiler's efficiency rating, warmth vs. energy savings and eventually lower bills. In order to help London residents, LB Plumbing and Heating (www.lbplumbingandheating.com) has just published a new blog post authored by Ray le Blanc entitled 'Hear What Satisfied Clients Have to Say about LB Plumbing & Heating'.

The article discusses Ray's experience with boiler swaps and full heating installs in the Greater London area. Although the article discusses some things to keep in mind, much of it is told through the stories of satisfied customers.

?We used Ray for a Combi-boiler replacement to our 100-year-old apartment?s conventional system,? stated John, a customer who had used Ray on a multi-unit dwelling boiler replacement. ?All unforeseeable problems were resolved, and Ray left us clean and tidy. On time and on budget?

A reliable heating and plumbing contractor can save money in the end. Another couple who came to Ray had already spent money without the results for which they had hoped.

?We have used Ray Le Blanc on three different occasions to improve our home,? they stated as matter of fact. ?Two of these jobs were the result of previous poor workmanship by another contractor. Ray achieved exceptional results with a high quality of work. The finished product is outstanding. At last our home is beginning to be comfortable and functioning.?

LB Plumbing and Heating under Ray Le Blanc has been in business helping London area homeowners save money and energy for several years. They are conscientious of their client's needs and guarantee both their work and parts.
