Duluth, Georgia - September 29, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Atlanta Institute of Music and Media is an educational facility that is 100% committed to doing everything they can to help their graduates succeed professionally in the music business. There is no better example of that than the fact that their Music Production School is now offering two types of programs for aspiring producers. This includes AIMM's Music Production and Audio for Media Associate Degree and Certificate in Music Production. These programs offer students the best insider tips and techniques when it comes to tracking, mixing, and mastering music.

Nite Driscoll, the President of Atlanta Institute of Music and Media, says, "Anyone who has ever been around the music industry realizes how hard it is to break into it professionally. That's why we have worked so hard to design curriculums in our Music Production School that are widely recognized for being comprehensive, fully immersive, and provides lots of actual hands-on learning. These are the types of programs that will definitely give our students a leg up on the competition when they go out into the world seeking professional employment in the music industry."

According to Driscoll, AIMM welcomes anyone that has a passion for music production and would like to make that field a career. He says that those that decide to learn with them will participate in their uniquely effective approach to vocational training for musicians, production, and engineering students. The learning environment in their well-rounded curriculums consists of general classroom instruction, one-on-one instruction, audio learning, DVD & video labs, computer labs, and live clinics. AIMM's president says students will also have opportunities at times to help with the productions that the institute puts on to show their students progress in their respective music curriculums.

The President of AIMM mentioned that they are also proud to be a music learning facility that can be flexible when they need to be. This is something that has proven to be very beneficial for their students during the current virus crisis. Students who are enrolled with them now have the option to participate in online classes only, attend classes in-person, or work towards their degree or certificate using a combination of classroom and online learning. This music school is widely popular due to its industry-leading instructors and their exclusive music studios that feature state-of-the-art music production equipment.

Driscoll stated that for those students who are skeptical that a degree or certificate from the Atlanta Institute of Music and Media can get them where they want to be professionally in the music business, have to look no further than successful AIMM Music Production alumni Kesha Lee. In addition to earning a Grammy for her work on "This Is America" with Childish Gambino and KEYZBABY, she also produced the current #1 song in America, "WAP".

The institute president brought up the fact that their music production programs are not the only highly recognized curriculums that the school puts on. They also offer a Music and Technology Associate Degree: Concentration in Guitar, Bass, Drums, Keyboard, or Voice; Online Certificate in Music and Technology: Guitar or Bass Concentration; and a Performance Certificate: Concentration in Guitar, Bass, Drums, Keyboard, or Voice. Driscoll stated that graduates from all of these different curriculums have gone on to have a wide variety of success in the music industry.

Driscoll went on to say that those who are interested in learning more about the Atlanta Institute of Music and Media's Music Production courses can do so very easily. All they have to do is visit the page on their website which describes in more detail how to get a music production degree. If this piques someone's interest in the school, AIMM's president says the next step is to fill out the form that's found on the bottom of that same webpage to get the process started. He says that their website also has other good information on it too. This includes such things as their admission requirements, the different types of financial aid that they offer, and how to schedule a tour to take a first-hand look at their facilities.
