Crestview, Fla. ? Lewis and?Jurnovoy are well-known and trusted bankruptcy attorneys in the Crestview area, highlighting?financial debt relief?through bankruptcy amid the global pandemic. The recent global pandemic and local hurricane have affected the area drastically, placing many in the community in difficult financial situations. Lewis and Jurnovoy recognize that despite this difficult time, many people may still fear bankruptcy as an option for financial debt relief.

The attorneys know that many people have a fear of bankruptcy, which comes with a lack of understanding. However, filing for bankruptcy could be the fresh start many people need right now. The pandemic has prevented many collections efforts due to orders put in place by the government or leniency of lenders, but this will come to an end soon. Lewis and Jurnovoy advise that delaying debt could put people in a worse situation in the long run. Collections efforts will inevitably resume, and even though things are on hold now, debt could still be accumulating.

The attorneys advise that the best route for financial debt relief is filing for bankruptcy, which will wipe the slate clean instead of pushing the payments off. Lewis and Jurnovoy anticipate a tidal wave of bankruptcy cases once collections resume. They advise that those in the community struggling to stay afloat should be considering bankruptcy sooner rather than later.

Lewis and Jurnovoy offer guidance for those filing chapter 13 or chapter 7 bankruptcy throughout the Florida Panhandle. The two attorneys became partners in 1998, now they each have almost 30 years of experience in bankruptcy law. Lewis and Jurnovoy have a passion for seeing people escape financial turmoil and have a dedication to making the process easy and stress-free for clients.
