Fort Walton Beach, Fla. ? Lewis and Jurnovoy is a trusted?bankruptcy law firm in Fort Walton Beach, FL,?highlighting the option for bankruptcy amid the recent pandemic. The attorneys recognize that many people in the community may fear bankruptcy as an option for debt relief. However, it could be a viable option for people to consider during this difficult time. Filing bankruptcy is a debt relief option giving those who file a clean slate instead of continuing to accumulate debt.

The ongoing global pandemic has many lenders providing leniency on payments, while many local governments are stepping in and preventing foreclosures. The local attorneys worry that this option is only piling up the debt of those in the community instead of providing them with the financial relief they need. Bankruptcy cases are currently down by 60 percent since last year nationwide; however, the attorneys expect to see an influx of bankruptcy cases once collections begin again.

Filing for bankruptcy now, ahead of the tidal wave, is the best approach for those in need of financial debt relief as the bills continue to pile up. Lewis and Jurnovoy worry many people in the community will wait too long to file, and instead drain retirement funds and other assets. These valuable assets could potentially be protected if those in need were to file for bankruptcy. Lewis and Jurnovoy can help uncomplicate the filing process.

Lewis and Jurnovoy handle bankruptcy cases across the Florida Panhandle, providing an affordable bankruptcy lawyer for those who need it the most. The attorneys handle both chapter 13 and chapter 7 bankruptcy cases and will work tirelessly to achieve the best financial remedy for debt relief. Check them out Tuesdays at 7 P.M. on Blab T.V, where they answer bankruptcy questions submitted by viewers.
