3 Bees and Me happily announced earlier that their Portable Diaper Changing Station is now back on the popular shopping website Amazon. The product was not available for a couple of days because of a high demand from customers. The good news is that there are new stocks.

"We are ecstatic to announce to everyone that our product is available again on the online shopping shelves of Amazon. Because of your awesome support, we ran out of stock for a couple of days, but now, we are back," says Holly James, 3 Bees and Me spokesperson. "We truly appreciate each and everyone of you who have bought our popular and stylish changing pad kit in Chevron design. Rest assured that we will continue to bring to you amazing products that you and your baby will love."

The diaper clutch has become very popular especially among new moms. It has received an impressive number of positive reviews from its users. In one review by Marla Barritt, she wrote, "I ordered this changing pad for my daughter a few weeks ago. When it came, it was exactly what we wanted...opened up to be nice and big, lots of pockets for diapers, wipes and creams, or anything else you might choose to put in it! Sturdy, nicely sewn and durable. Cute pattern too! Perfect."

This changing station boasts a classic Chevron design that is gender neutral. The clutch itself has several compartments that are spacious enough to accommodate some baby essentials such as diapers, clothes, wipes and small baby toys. In addition to the compartments, it also has a zippered front pocket that can be used to keep other important items such as money and keys. The pad has a unique wing design that is ideal to keep the baby from touching dirty surfaces during diaper change. The clutch also has a convenient wrist strap that can easily be attached to any baby stroller.

Again, 3 Bees and Me just announced that their Diaper Changing Pad Station is available again at Amazon. This is especially ideal for moms who prefer to have a compact baby clutch that is easy to bring anywhere.
