Kernersville, North Carolina-based Revival Products, Inc. is pleased to announce that they are selling soy protein shakes for weight loss. Founded in 1996, Revival Products, Inc. is dedicated to manufacturing soy protein products that help both men and women lead healthier lives.

Data gathered from numerous studies shows that soy protein can play a major role in helping people lose weight. Revival Products explains that, as people grow older and exercise less, the task of staying fit and trim becomes more and more difficult. However, it does not have to be that way. Combining a sensible diet and light exercise with Revival soy protein shakes can do wonders for those who are trying to hit their weight loss goals.

While this might sound doubtful, considering the widespread trend of "magic pills" and fad diets, this is not the case with Revival. Revival's doctor-formulated soy protein reduces hunger cravings and eliminates rapid rise in blood sugar levels. As the company shares, a significant number of research studies support claims that soy protein consumption can help people lose weight. Additionally, soy protein is an excellent source of high-quality protein (compared to some other protein sources) that can help build lean muscle mass. Soy protein also provides a good source of energy from calories and branched-chain amino acids. All of this means that, when partnered with a healthy diet and the right exercise, soy protein becomes a critical component in a successful diet plan.

Revival also shares that soy protein is not just low in carbs and fat, but also has a low-glycemic index which means it won't cause a rapid rise in blood sugar levels, compared to glucose, after consumption. Revival's products – which include low-glycemic protein bars, and protein shakes that come in a variety of choices such as sweetener including fructose, unsweetened, and sucralose – also have a low-glycemic index, as confirmed by several recent clinical studies.

The company also points out that soy protein is a complete protein. In fact, it is the only plant protein that is a complete protein, which means it contains all nine essential amino acids in the right balance to meet the human body's needs. This means that people who consume Revival products get the highest quality protein available, with less fat and fewer calories than many meats. As a bonus fact, they do not have to worry about genetic modifications because Revival is made from genetically-pure soybeans (i.e. non-genetically modified or "non-GMO").

For those who want to lose weight with Revival soy protein products, the company recommends a naturally-concentrated (6x) Revival protein bar or protein shake containing 20 grams of protein once or twice daily with a multivitamin. Along with a solid diet plan and regular exercise, this should be enough to get started down the weight loss journey. However, the company does warn that Revival Shakes and Bars should not be used as the sole nutritional source. The company also recommends using Revival Baked Soy Protein Chips and other protein snacks to boost protein intake – and simultaneously decrease between-meal/late-night snacking and increase energy (protein is a good source of caloric energy).

Suzanne Tabor, a representative for Revival Products, Inc. says, "Revival began its life when I reached out to my son to help me find a way to deal with hot flashes. I mean, 50 is a good number unless it represents the number of hot flashes you're having each night, the number of steps it takes you to be completely worn out or the dress size you fear may be yours. This is not much of an exaggeration because that's the condition I was facing. After raising the kids, I thought I would be kicking up my heels. But that's not what was happening. Boy, I needed some real kind of relief!"

Tabor continues, "My son's medicinal knowledge and my taste buds worked hard over two years before we perfected the first naturally-concentrated Revival Soy blend with about the same amount of soy isoflavones found in six cups of a typical soy milk. Within days of use, I began feeling better. I suddenly had more energy without feeling hungry and my menopausal discomforts nearly vanished in just four weeks. I now have the best skin, hair and nail appearance of my life and a slim waistline that I love. Revival literally gave me my life back, and I felt better than I had felt in years – and whether it's through our soy protein shakes or shakes for hot flashes, I know Revival can do the same for you.?
