

The Barber Law Firm Posts New Blog Recognizing Dallas County?s Recent Record Early Voting Turnout

October 21, 2020

October 21, 2020 -
The Barber Law Firm has just released a new blog on its website covering the record early voter turnout in Dallas County, Texas. They say that this record turnout shows that the Dallas area, just like the rest of the country, sees this as one of the most important presidential elections to ever take place. The firm likes to post local current news blogs such as this one because they are not only committed to offering top-notch personal injury legal services, but they also believe that it?s important to be an active part of their local community.

The firm?s spokesperson, Daniel James, says, ?We are a law firm that has always believed that being the best we can be goes well-beyond just offering quality legal services. That?s why we always stress that being connected to the community that we serve is also very important to us. One way that we accomplish this is through the local current news blogs like this one that we frequently post on our website. It shows our clients and others that we committed to being an active part of our community and that we are constantly aware of the current happenings in the Dallas area?s that we serve.?

According to the firm?s newly posted blog article, the day that the record voter turnout was set took place on Tuesday, October 13th, 2020. It was a day that saw a jaw-dropping 59,809 early votes cast. This beat the previous record set back in 2016 by over a thousand voters. The blog post states that this created some long waits but those that had to even stand in line for over an hour took this all-in stride and were happy to have the chance to vote early. It also mentioned that some voters thought the long lines were a direct result of strict social distancing requirements that were put in place, but once they saw the record numbers of those who voted that day quickly understood that was not the case. That record number of voters on the 13th comes out to an average of just under 1000 voters visiting each of the Dallas area?s 61 early voting sites that day. The new post also pointed out that some of the longest waits of over 2-hours to vote took place at the Duncanville Library site and the only voting delays that were reported due to malfunctioning equipment took place at the Samuell Grand Recreation Center in East Dallas.

The Barber Law Firm posts all different types of blogs on their website. James mentioned that some feature local interest stories such as this one and other articles are centered around legal topics, most of which pertain to personal injury law. Other announcements from the firm can also be seen in their media room which features many recent press releases that have been written on them. He stated that the areas of personal injury law that they specialize in include moving vehicle accidents, workmen?s compensation, wrongful death, premises liability, and more. The firm?s spokesperson added that for their client?s convenience, they have several locations in the Dallas area. Besides their Dallas main office, their other Metroplex locations include Grapevine, Frisco, Plano, Irving, and Ft. Worth. He mentioned that they even have a single law office in San Antonio.

The personal injury legal services that The Barber Law Firm provides have also left them on the receiving end of many glowing reviews. Diane Spencer states, ?Every interaction with The Barber Law Firm instilled confidence in me that all aspects of my personal injury claim were in good hands. Each person I worked with throughout the process was professional as well as personable. I felt cared for and cared about. They lifted a heavy burden off my shoulders and reassured me whenever I needed it. I recommend them highly and would never consider using anyone else.? This 5 out of 5-star review was taken from the firm?s Google Maps Listing which shows that the legal services at all of their Dallas area locations are rated well-above average.
