October 19, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

October 2020, Bluffton, SC - As the autumn season begins, Bluffton-based Rose Landscape is likewise refining its maintenance programs to help homeowners prepare their garden for the colder months ahead.

The Best Landscape Designer in Bluffton SC offers everyone a solution, especially for homeowners who do not have the time to take care of their garden. The professional landscaper says the colder and harsher weather ahead should not be an excuse to neglect the garden. Proper maintenance activities help ensure that the garden will stay in great shape through autumn, says Rose Landscape.

According to Rose Landscape, the change in season requires different garden and landscape solutions. Each season requires specific plants and maintenance activities. For example, young plants and trees must be protected, for they become vulnerable to cold weather. Installing tree guarding wraps to protect trunks can be one solution.

The autumn season also means keeping garden furniture at a safer place or using protective covers. Most of this furniture cannot survive too much cold. Those with ponds should also ensure to put a net to avoid turning it into an eyesore.
