Clean Group, a company based in Sydney, NSW, Australia, has announced that they can help in cleaning and sanitising any place in Sydney, whether it is a home, office, or any building, to help people avoid getting infected with COVID-19. This infectious disease is caused by a novel coronavirus, which can be spread when people who have the virus cough and sneeze, when there is contact with an infected person, or when coming in contact with an object or surface that has the virus and then touching the nose or eyes with hands that have the virus. To minimize the risk of getting COVID-19, it is essential ensure that everything in the home, office, or building is not already harbouring the virus. This is done through regular cleaning, sanitisation, and disinfection of the area. More about the services that Clean Group can provide can be gleaned from <https://www.clean-group.com.au/covid-19-sanitising-cleaning-sydney/>.

Clean Group has a dedicated team of cleaners who have been well-trained with regards to a special COVID 19 cleaning and disinfection process that is capable of eliminating various germs, bacteria and viruses. They can provide corona disinfection and sanitisation of the Sydney office or property, including everything from doors, door handles, floors, window sills, kitchens, lightboards, bathrooms, etc., to make sure that family members and employees can stay safe against the coronavirus.

Suji Siv, owner and CEO of the Clean Group, says, "The COVID-19 virus spreads at a very fast rate, so do not take any chances with the life/health of your family and employees. Request for regular cleaning and disinfection services for your home or office."

He adds, "We are truly committed to keeping your home or business safe through our efficient cleaning services. We are capable of providing the best-quality corona virus cleaning services to ensure that your home or office continue to remain clean and that your family members or workers continue to be safe from diseases."

There are number of factors that differentiate the COVID-19 cleaning services provided by the Clean Group in Sydney. First, they make use of a cleaning and disinfection process that is effective in killing bacteria, germs, and viruses, including the novel coronavirus that causes COVID-19. Second, they will provide in-depth cleaning, including sweeping, mopping, and wiping, to get the best results. And third, their services include the sanitisation of things like switchboards, phones, computers, doors, and other items that are frequently touched by people. The COVID-19 cleaning services offered by the Clean Group has two components: basic cleaning and disinfection and sanitising. During the basic cleaning stage, the company's professional cleaners will clean, mop, and sweep the floors, doors, windows, carpets, kitchens, bathrooms, and more to get rid of dirt, dust and debris from those areas. And in the disinfection and sanitisation stage, they will disinfect and sanitise everything, including lightboards, equipment, drawers, desks, toilet seats, keyboards, computers, railings, telephones, door handles, trash bins, and more, to get rid of all bacteria and viruses.

To ensure that they can provide thorough disinfection and sanitisation services, they make use of the Clean Group Defence Shield, which combines electrostatic sprayer application technology with the Zoono-71 Surface Sanitiser. The result is the ability to kill up to 99.99 percent of germs for a duration of up to 30 days. The Zoono-71 has been tested and proven to have an efficacy of more than 99.99 percent.
