October 20, 2020 -

Pensacola, Fla. ? Eddie Hill, the owner of Award Masters, a local awards shop in Pensacola, has received his Certified Recognition Master (CRM) designation. Currently, only 69 professionals throughout the country have their CRM, which is less than one percent of all awards professionals. The CRM certification is one of the highest professional accolades an awards and personalization professional can receive, distinguished by completing an approved thesis and 170 hours of technical and business courses approved by the Awards and Personalization Association.

The Personalization Professional Certification is a program managed by the Awards and Personalization Association, which has thousands of members worldwide. Hill was awarded the CRM designation during the International Awards & Personalization Expo that was held during the Awards and Personalization Association's annual meeting in Las Vegas, Nevada.

Assisting retailers and suppliers around the globe, The Awards and Personalization Association is based in Chicago, IL and is an international nonprofit membership organization. Through the education program that they sponsor, Hill is given the opportunity to meet with top industry leaders and speakers to gain a higher level of knowledge and skill in the technical processes, as well as learn the best practices when it comes to sales, marketing, and business operations.

The company's state-of-the-art production facility includes engraving equipment that can power drill, route, sandblast, laser engrave, and diamond drag. Award Masters also offers full-color sublimation (subsurface) printing, UV printing, and graphic abilities.

Award Masters, Inc. is owned by both Mr. Hill and his wife, Tami Hill. The store is located at 5353 N Palafox St. in Pensacola, Florida. Award Masters Inc. has more than 27 years of experience creating custom-made recognition products for corporations, educational institutes, sports teams, athletic organizations, and more.
