The nature of the pandemic is ongoing and unpredictable. Due to this, one must be constantly vigilant against potential new outbreaks or community spread. Clean Group would like to assure the community that their cleaning services will be available in the months to come in response to this risk. If any parties are interested in scheduling their first COVID-19 disinfection and cleaning service, they may contact Clean Group at their earliest convenience.

This service is called the Clean Group Electrostatic Disinfection Method. Clean Group is so certain that this service is effective that their routine cleaning clients have the option of requesting their first session free of charge. A single session of this cleaning protocol is designed to ensure that an area had at least 30 days of virus protection. Due to the efficiency of this system, the team at Clean Group is sure that their clients will be confidently able to request this particular protocol on a regular basis in order to keep themselves and the premises as safe as possible. The Defence Shield service offered by Clean Group employs an electrostatic sprayer application technology, in combination with a Zoono-71 Surface Sanitiser. This is intended to deliver a potent disinfectant combination that kills up to 99.99% of germs for as long as a month. This service stands out as other cleaning services in the region utilize regular disinfecting sprays and wiping products to disinfect a given location. Some other services may use what is known as the fogging method, which Clean Group acknowledges as offering a slightly more effective protection from germs. However, the company would like to reiterate that only one solution is perfectly designed to offer local businesses the protection and peace of mind they need to carry out their daily work. This solution is the Clean Group Electrostatic Disinfection Method.

The secret behind the success of this method is implied in its name. The sprayers used during the application process gives a positive charge to the expelled disinfecting solution, allowing it to stick and cling around surfaces (which are negatively charged) with more efficiency. During the process, this ensures that the disinfecting solution will stick to virtually every surface it approaches while even covering the hardest to reach corners.

Examples for difficult to reach places are the many tucked in corners of an office chair. They are incredibly difficult to reach and are more likely to be overlooked. This does not happen when utilizing the Clean Group Electrostatic Disinfection Method. An additional bonus of this method is that it is time efficient, as it allows the Clean Group team to cover large areas with the specialized sprayers, as opposed to other disinfecting or cleaning methods.
