Custom College Visits, a company based in the San Francisco Bay Area, has revealed that their college tours and campus visits allow parents and their college-bound teens not only to get to know various colleges and universities, but to also find time for bonding. Visiting colleges may not sound like an ideal way for parents and their college-bound teens to spend some quality time together, but the company's unique planning process actually allows families to do just that. Further details are available at <https://www.customcollegevisits.com/our-services/>.

Janice Caine, founder of Custom College Visits, says: "Time seems to pass faster and faster as our kids grow older, and the high school years seem to fly by. The frenzied life of a teenager offers little in the way of quality family time, especially during the junior and senior years of high school. Combine that with parents' day-to-day responsibilities, and it's understandable why there are few opportunities for bonding. So while the college road trip is not what most of us think of as a typical vacation, it's a chance for parents and their teens to do things together without the usual daily responsibilities."

Custom College Visits works with each family to ensure that every aspect of their customized college itinerary is planned according to their particular specifications and that all arrangements are confirmed before departure. As a result, families can tour college campuses worry-free, allowing parents and their teens to spend quality time together.

"Over the years we've heard from many of our clients that the customized tours that we planned for them brought about great conversations and wonderful memories," adds Janice Caine. "Of course, the main focus of these college tours is for students to gain an inside look at the culture and community of each campus that they visit. Many times it's not until families have spent a couple of days away from home that they realize the added benefit of this one-on-one time together."

Custom College Visits is proud to work with students and families from around the world. Their services include creating custom designed itineraries for college visits and campus tours. Itineraries may include meetings with faculty members and current students, interviews, overnight stays, and class visits. The company also handles complete travel logistics.
